Their announcement confirmed earlier rumors of their romance.

ANSWER PUTS PEACE PARLEY IN DEADLOCK

Differences In Proposal And Counter Proposal Same as Those Causing Split.

ENVOYS RECESS FOR WEEK

But Labor Leaders Believe Platforms Paving Way For Early 'Bargaining.'

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Peace delegates of 7,300,000 organized American workers reached deadlock today in efforts to reunite the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization and recessed their historic peace conference for one week.

Alternate peace proposals, rejected by both factions, will be considered during the interim and new efforts to end labor's two-year civil war will be begun at resumption of the conference on Nov. 4.

Both Sides Reject.

The widely divergent proposals, under which the two warring factions outlined conditions under which they would be willing to reunite, proved mutually unacceptable during the tense conference.

The CIO outlined its plan yesterday. The A. F. of L. replied with a counter proposal this morning The CIO promptly rejected it.

After continuing in conference another hour, the delegates agreed to recess.

The federation had demanded dissolution of the CIO, with return of the original "rebel" unions into the parent organization without loss of rights and conferences to determine disposition of membership in CIO unions organized since the rift in labor's ranks.

The CIO asked complete autonomy for all its units in a separate department within the federation structure, together with a free hand to unionize mass industries and basic material industries.

Murray listed three reasons why the federation peace plan was unacceptable to the CIO, and said:

"It has been clearly demonstrated by the CIO that the mass production and other basic industries must be organized on industrial lines.

'Still Determined.'

"The A. F. of L. proposal indicates that the American Federation of Labor is still determined to prevent such organization, even though it may prevent the organization of the mil-

Montague Acquitted, Signs Contract

John Montague, "mystery man" of Hollywood, was free today to accept a contract guaranteeing him a million dollars in seven years for displaying his talents as a golfer. He was acquitted by a jury last night of a seven-year-old robbery charge which grew out of a roadhouse holdup back in 1930. In the above photo, Montague is shown with his mother who testified he was at home at the time of the robbery. At his left is Mrs. Madeline McGrath, a sister, and at the right of his mother is Mrs. Mary Allen, another sister.

'Mystery Man' Freed, Gets Million Dollar Contract

Crooner Crosby's Brother Becomes Employer of Golf Wizard—Judge Scores Jury's Acquittal Verdict.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y.—(AP)—Acquitted of a seven-year-old robbery charge, John Montague plotted today a new and richer chapter in an already amazing life.

Shortly after an Adirondack mountain jury freed the fabulous golfing pal of movie stars, officials of the Paramount studios announced in Hollywood that "Mysterious Monty" had signed a contract amounting to $1,000,000 in seven years.

The pact was signed with Everett Crosby, Bing's older brother, and calls for appearances on the radio, in pictures and as a professional golfer competing in the nation's most valued tournaments, studio executives said.

Appears With Bing.

Montague's first radio appearance probably will be on Bing's next program, they said. Tentative plans also call for a series of golfing movie shorts, a part in Bing's next picture, "The Badge of Policeman O'Roon."

"I hope eventually to get back to Hollywood," he told friends after a jury acquitted him of looting Kin Hana's roadhouse of $700 back in 1930, when he was known as Laverne Moore.

Only a few hours before, a jury of 12 manual laborers walked into a jammed little, old-fashioned courtroom and handed down the verdict:

"We find the defendant not guilty . . ."

But elderly, Presiding County Judge Harry E. Owen banged his gavel, ordered the spectators out of the aisles and looked sternly at the jury.

"Gentlemen, this verdict is not in accord with what I think you should have returned. That, however, is up to you."

Fugitive Thumbs Ride With Guards

CANON CITY, Colo.—(AP)—Gordon Getz escaped from the State Insane hospital. He thumbed a ride with motorists and shortly was back in the hospital.

The motorists were state prison guards seeking an escaped convict.

EXHUME BODY

Probers In Girl's Slaying to Make New Examination.

ELYRIA — (AP) — The body of Louise Hornbeck, 19-year-old victim of an attack slayer was to be exhumed today for further examination as authorities turned to science in an effort to solve the case.

Dr. S. C. Ward, Lorain county coroner, said the examination would be made at Mount Victory, O., in Hardin county, where the girl was buried Saturday.

Coroner Ward said he had ordered the exhumation following a report by Dr. Reuben Strauss, pathologist, on a biological test given a 23-year-old hitch-hiker, who Sheriff Grall said had confessed to striking and attacking the girl but denied killing her.

Dr. Strauss examined the hitchhiking suspect several days ago and authorities said his report discredited at least part of the youth's confession.

PASTOR-KILLER TO DIE IN CHAIR

Jury Finds Evangelist Guilty of Killing Wife, Salesman.

LEXINGTON, Ky.—(UP)—Rev. Miller Olmon Johnson, 47, itinerant evangelist, late yesterday heard the verdict of a jury in Fayette circuit court which will send him to the electric chair for the murder of his estranged wife, Mrs. Willie C. Johnson, 46.

Rev. Johnson killed his wife and William Rue, 37, a visitor at her home here, on Oct. 13. The evangelist also was charged with Rue's death but was tried first for the murder of his wife.

Although Rev. Johnson has accused his wife of being unfaithful, members of his family said Rue had come to the home to call upon the Johnsons' daughter, Leila, 23.

2 DIE, 6 HURT AS BUILDING FALLS

Minneapolis Warehouse, Office Workers Buried Under Tons of Tangled Wreckage.

MINNEAPOLIS —(AP)— Two persons were killed, six injured and several were missing today after the second floor of the three story brick building housing the Morris Fruit company collapsed.

The first body recovered was that of a woman, believed to have been a witchboard operator. The body of Maz Zelickson, 32, Minneapolis, a salesman, was dragged from the debris shortly before noon.

Tons of debris buried office and warehouse workers in a mass of tangled wreckage. David Posnick, owner of the fruit concern, told police 11 persons were working in an office on the second floor when the crash came.

Witnesses said a loud explosion was heard just before the floor dropped, plumetting cases of oranges and gingerale to the first floor.

I. Borovsky, who was standing on the street in front of the building said:

"There was a terrific noise just like thunder. It sounded like a dam that had just been blown Then the debris began falling and great clouds of dust arose. I could plainly hear the screams of men and women above the sound of the falling timber."

Police, firemen and other rescue workers dug through the ruins for missing employes.

ROOSEVELT IN NEW PEACE PLEA

Avoid War By All 'Honorable Means,' Navy Day Message Says.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt said in a navy day message today the United States would avoid war "by all honorable means."

The commander-in-chief of the most powerful American navy in history coupled with this, however, a statement of determination to maintain adequate sea defenses in the face of widespread rearmament abroad.

He expressed his views in a letter to Secretary Swanson, through whom he congratulated the navy on its splendid efficiency * * * and competent leadership."

'Ghosts' and 'Goblins' at Play Again

Windows Rattle, Gates Disappear as Annual 'Nightmare' Arrives.

It's the season of the year when gravel hails against windows, gates disappear, corn shocks suddenly appear in the road ahead of you at night, and small buildings need anchorage if they hold their moorings.

Halloween is only three nights away, and while ghosts and goblins may run rampant in true October fashion to bring joy to celebrants, the traditional observance is just a nightmare to police officers who hear all the compalints.

With his fingers crossed, Police Chief Meade K. Bates describes the season so far as "quiet." Only the customary reports of missing articles and boys' pranks—and fewer of them than usual—have come onto the police blotter Bates thinks the youngsters must be working off their enthusiasm at indoor celebrations.

But with Sheriff E. P. Long and his deputies it is different. Almost nightly requests pour in to the sheriff's office for deputies to "come out and watch for the kids."

Sometimes the deputies do go out, Sheriff Long said, but they rarely find anything but an irate property owner clearing fodder or rocks off his porch or scrubbing the remains of over-ripe tomatoes from his windows.

A deputy caught up with a few of the pranksters last night and accused them of throwing tomatoes at a farmer's house, but there was no evidence in the boys' pockets or on their hands, so there wasn't anything to be done about it, Long explained.

"The boys don't get any fun out of their tricks unless they're chased," the sheriff said, "and it wouldn't be halloween if there wasn't mischief done."

He issued a warning, however, that destruction of property will not be tolerated and said his staff will promptly investigate such reports.

BLAST KILLS 14

Fire Follows Explosion In Alaskan Coal Mine.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska—(U.P.)—Fourteen men were reported killed in an explosion that set fire to the Evans-Jones coal mine at Jonesville, 70 miles north of here, last night.

Z. J. Loussac, vice president of the company, returned here from the mine and reported the bodies of six men were recovered and there was no hope for eight other men trapped in the workings.

Five miners escaped after the blast, he said.

Loussac reported that the six bodies recovered were so badly mangled and burned that he doubted if they would be identified.

He said the fire was extinguished late last night but that the mine suffered heavy damage.

RIOT IN MADRID

Residents Revolt After Learning of Gijon's Fall, Report.

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, France—(U.P.)—Unconfirmed frontier reports said today that a section of the Madrid population revolted last night and that fighting was going on in the streets.

Fighting broke out, the reports said, when the populace finally learned of the fall of Gijon and the removal of the government from Valencia to Barcelona.

DRIVERS WALK OUT, DELIVERIES IN CITY HALTED

Blockade Starting at 4 Firms, Spreads to Entire 28 Coal Companies Here.

DEALER FACES CHARGE

City Officials Arrange Meeting For Tonight In Effort to Reach Settlement.

Mansfield's coal and building supplies were cut off today as the blockade of union drivers spread to all coal yards in the city.

While 150 members of the International Brotherhood of Chauffeurs, Teamsters, Stablemen and Helpers local No. 40, walked out this morning at 28 yards, one dealer was ordered into court tomorrow morning to face a charge of assault and battery following an altercation in his office this morning.

Driver Swears Out Charge.

Frank M. Glasgow, proprietor of the Direct Coal company, 190 West Sixth street, was named in the assault affidavit sworn out by Lorenzo A. Wade, 145 North Main street. Wade is a driver for the Kent Rummel Coal company.

Glasgow said he called Wade in from the picket line to question him about a personal matter. After an exchange of words, he said he pushed him out of the office. He denied he struck him.

The blockade, started yesterday at four companies which union drivers said refused to negotiate with them over wages and working conditions, spread to all the yards this morning.

Patrol City Entrances.

Picket lines were set up immediately and entrances to the city were patrolled to prevent coal shipments from entering. Augmented by other members of organized labor who volunteered their support, Joe Huntsman, business agent for the local, said that between 300 and 400 men were on picket duty.

While pickets guarded the entrance to all the coal and building supplies yards, Huntsman said that nearly 100 men were assigned to cruiser duty, to patrol all high-

Believes Eyes of Dead Will Enable Sightless To See

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— The blind, suffering from opacity of the cornea, may see again through the eyes of the dead, a New York physician reported to the American college of surgeons today.

Dr. Ramon Castroviejo told 3,000 member surgeons at their congress that minute segments of the "eye's window" taken from persons with good eyesight at the time of their death may through a series of delicate operations, be transplanted and made to grow in persons whose sight has been clouded by injury or disease.

The technique has improved vision and eventually may eliminate one of the most common causes of blindness, it was explained.

"When the operation is performed on favorable eyes, a high percentage of success may be expected, with permanent clear transplants and considerable improvement of vision," Castroviejo told the congress.

"In one of the cases operated upon by the author, vision improved from perception of hand movement at one foot to two-thirds of normal vision."

BIERLY, G. O. P. PLATFORM HIT

Democratic Speakers Resume Attack on Nominee, Score 'Vague' 7-Point Plan.

The Democratic attack on Glenn L. Bierly, Republican candidate for mayor, was continued last night by two speakers at a Third ward organization meeting at Democratic headquarters, with the G. O. P. seven-point platform coming in for criticism.

Another charge of inconsistency was flung at Bierly by County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott who said that the Republican mayoralty candidate, "after expressing the desire for a quiet campaign, accused his opponents of 'smear tactics' when they brought up the subject of the Mansfield conservancy district."

Referring to the G. O. P. rally at the Brinkerhoff school Monday night as "the only Republican meeting of a size worth mentioning," Marriott added that Bierly, speaking at that meeting, asked for "the other side of the conservancy question, leaving his

ASKS HUNTER TO EXPLAIN STAND

Cramer Calls on Democratic Nominee to 'Make Public Your Platform.'

Addressing a Republican Fourth ward rally at Hedges school last night, Atty. Stuart H. Cramer called on the Democratic mayoralty nominee, Claude M. Hunter to "make public your platform."

"One week from today we people as taxpayers go to the polls to elect a new general manager of this business of ours" Cramer said, in referring to Mansfield as a corporation with each person as a stockholder. "But as yet it has not been made public, how our opposition would run this business of ours."

"As voters we are entitled to know their plan and what procedure will be used by them to run those public offices," he asserted.

"We have a right to call upon Mr. Hunter, not as a challenge, but seeking to be informed, as taxpayers, where we may place our vote.

"Glenn L. Bierly, your candidate for mayor has come before the citizens of Mansfield, openly, frankly and fearlessly and told them where he stood. Last week a very definite platform was placed in the public press, for the approval of the stockholders of

BARBER CLEARED

Freed In Columbus Wife Slaying; Once Pleaded Guilty.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ray Davis' contention that the fatal shooting of his wife, Ruth, 36, was accidental won his acquittal on a second degree murder charge last night but Common Pleas Judge Robert P. Duncan rebuked the jury of seven women and five men for its verdict.

The 41-year-old barber pleaded guilty a few days after the shooting July 6 but said in his trial that he did not know to what he was pleading.

BALKED BY FIRE

Rescuers Try In Vain to Get Bodies of Train's Dead.

DANVILLE, Ill.—(U.P.)—Fire defied efforts of rescuers to remove bodies today from the debris of a Wabash line train wreck in which three persons were killed and 29 injured.

Bodies of the engineer and fireman of a passenger train which smashed into the rear end of a stalled freight train near Catlin were believed still in the wreckage. Rescuers were forced back by flames which consumed six box cars, three mail cars, an express car and a passenger coach.

Railroad employes said the freight train customarily traveled 10 minutes ahead of the passenger train. Last night, it was believed, the passenger train was several minutes ahead of schedule.

POWERS AGREE

'Surrender' to Italy, Germany In Dispute on Spain.

LONDON — (U.P.)—The international non-intervention committee has "surrendered" to Italy and German, diplomatic quarters asserted today because of the nature of its agreement for the eventual withdrawal of foreign "volunteers" from the Spanish civil war.

The agreement was accomplished, it was alleged, by virtually isolating Russia from the non-intervention program because of her refusal to consent to equal withdrawal of foreign fighters from the loyalist and nationalist ranks.

The sub-committee of the 27-nation neutrality group agreed to send commissions to Spain to study the volunteer issue.

The Russian delegation, headed by Ambassador Ivan Maisky, awaited instructions from Moscow as to whether it would continue to participate in the committee's deliberations.

Steel Shifts Rule, Pays First Dividend on Common in 5 Years

NEW YORK—(AP)—Rule of the vast empire of steel mills, ore and coal mines, railways and steamships that is the United States Steel corporation passes to new and younger hands.

Edward R. Stettinius jr., 38-year-old son of a Morgan partner, and Benjamin F. Fairless, 47-year-old son of a coal miner, are taking over the chairmanship and the presidency of the two-billion-dollar enterprise, employing directly a quarter million people.

They were definitely assigned to their new posts at yesterday's meeting of the board of directors, at which two 63-year-old titans of steel prepared to retire to less onerous duties.

Myron C. Taylor, present chairman, said he would not serve again when his term expires next April 4, and it was announced that Stettinius would take his place. The directors also chose Fairless to succeed William A. Irvin as president, effective Jan. 1.

Stettinius is now chairman of the finance committee, and Fairless is president of the corporation's principal subsidiary, Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

Despite its climatic flavor, the board's announceemnt was regarded as wholly in line with a program conceived by Taylor shortly after J. P. Morgan persuaded him to emerge from retirement and take a hand in the management of the steel indus-

Stores Must Keep Pace With Changing Times, Retailers Told

The merchant of today must be a combined business manager, leader and psychologist if he is to succeed in the face of growing competition, Sidney Carter, of the Merchandise Mart, Chicago, told members of the Mansfield Retail Merchants association last night at their annual dinner meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Pointing to the progress shown by other industries in the past decade, Carter said the retail store must keep pace if it is to survive, but at the same time the retailer must not lose sight of the sound fundamentals upon which business is built.

"Since most economists have been proven wrong, you must remember that wealth is created by labor only and the work you do in your store is what makes you successful," he said.

Carter warned against the present tendency to build large and beautiful stores and then attempt to operate them on a bold business basis.

"You must recognize the customer, possibly more so than in past years, because people are improving their standard of living and demand more attention and service than they used to," he said.

He urged that merchants and clerks look for the "romance" in business, stating that women, especially, make an event of their shopping tour and often build an

North Shanghai In Flames as Chinese Flee Jap Fire

SET FIRE TO BUILDINGS TO HIDE RETREAT

China's Troops Leave Chapei Sector as Japanese Launch Crushing Attack.

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Fire started by warring Chinese and Japanese raged unchecked this afternoon through northern Shanghai and miles to the west.

Destruction by fire and sword reached new dimensions as Chinese retreated from the Chapei section north of the international settlement.

Flames penetrated the settlement at one point and by mid-afternoon had consumed a square block of closely-packed houses on Tibet road. All available foreign fire engines deployed along Soochow creek, which flows between Chapei and the international area, to keep the blaze from spreading.

Helped by Wind.

Settlement authorities were optimistic of success because the wind was from the east, blowing the flames parallel to the settlement boundary. Should the wind veer to blow from the north the settlement would be in danger of destruction.

Tonight promised to be one of the most uneasy since the Shanghai warfare started.

The fires were started by both Chinese and Japanese. Chinese put torches to buildings to cover their retreat from positions they had held for more than two months. Japanese did likewise to drive Chinese rearguard snipers from barricades and blasted ruins.

Flames first broke out in Chapei at dawn, when Chinese began their general retreat. In the afternoon the northern and western skies were clouded with black smoke. Over an expanse of six or seven miles, towers of flames shot skyward.

West of the settlement, fires broke out near Shanghai-Nanking railway tracks, further encircling the foreign area.

Launch Air Raid.

As the flames roared on, Japanese warplanes strafed retreating Chinese with bombs and machine gun bullets. The Japanese announced their forces had occupied Chapei, but said a number of isolated Chinese units remained.

Just west of the settlement boundary, Chinese and Japanese armies faced each other from opposite banks of Soochow creek. During the night and day of fighting in which Japanese occupied Chapei—China's Alcazar—Chinese were driven across the Shanghai-Nanking railroad and down the northwest boundary of the foreign area.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's warriors dug in along the southern bank of the creek, prepared to force Japanese to wage another major engagement.

JAPS REJECT PARLEY

TOKYO—(AP)—Japan formally declined today the invitation to participate in the Brussels conference of nine-power pact adherents on the Chinese-Japanese war.

A note handed to Belgian Ambassador Baron Albert de Bassompierre declared the conference was inspired by the League of Nations and would "put serious obstacles in the path of the just and proper solution" of the conflict.

(The Belgian foreign office announced yesterday in Brussels that the opening of the nine-power consultations had been postponed from next Saturday to next Tuesday.)

City park employes went fishing yesterday in the Central park fountain, but they fished with rakes and burlap nets and not with poles and it was all in the line of duty. The fishermen said their "catch" represented several pounds of growth since the fish were placed in the fountain late last spring.

audience to wonder if there was another side."

"Why does he (Bierly) maintain that material extracted from the law records of Richland county on the conservancy project is unfair to him?" Marriott asked.

Turning to the Republican platform, Marriott said. "I do not consider this platform worth reading to you. A 10-year-old boy would understand that it is merely a pat on the back for the voters. Vague throughout, it tells only what voters might want to hear."

Asserting that the public is voicing skepticism as to Republican promises regarding the civil service and bond issue questions, Marriott added that "obviously no one in Mansfield wants higher water rates, nor do voters want large bond issues authorized by council without a vote of the people. We've had too much of both from Republicans in the past."

John Correll, president of the Young Democratic club, accused Republicans of picking their candidates in a hotel room. "And now," he said "Bierly denounces that procedure."

Commending the Democrats for their use of the open primary system, Correll asserted that "the primary undoubtedly provides more representative candidates and eliminates any necessity for secret promises to private interests."

Claude M. Hunter, candidate for mayor, stated that he believed the mayor had a "full-time job" and promised to give up private business to devote his entire day to the office, if elected.

At what is predicted will be one of the major Democratic meetings of the campaign, Atty. Marshall C. Moore and Correll will speak at 7:30 p. m. today at the Prospect school. The rally will be in charge of the Dolly Madison club.

The candidates will appear at a fish fry sponsored by the John's Park association at the park Thursday night and again at a rally of the Colored Democratic club and Hunter-for-Mayor club at Tillman's hall, North Main street.

McLAGLEN, KIN OF MOVIE STAR, HELD IN PROBE OF 'SHAKEDOWN'

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Leopold McLaglen, 49-year-old brother of the screen star, Victor McLaglen, was booked at the county jail today on suspicion of solicitation of the commission of a crime and suspicion of subordination of perjury.

His huge shoulders squared back, McLaglen vehemently denied to Sheriff's Inspector William Penprase that he tried to "shake down" millionaire Philip Chancellor for an $8,000 salary bonus.

"I do not know what this is all about. There is not a scratch upon my integrity in any country of the world," he said.

McLaglen was taken into custody last night after what Inspector Penprase said was a six weeks investigation required by Chancellor, who inherited an Akron, Ohio, fortune.

Held in technical custody as a material witness was Chancellor's former secretary, Stanley Glimm.

Chancellor said he became acquainted with McLaglen when he hired him to teach him a new form of jiu-jitsu.

Chancellor told Inspector Penprase he decided to write a book and McLaglen persuaded him to take espionage for his subject, agreeing to supply material on various international intelligence operations.

After some months, Chancellor asserted, McLaglen failed to produce useful data. Chancellor said McLaglen was dismissed then but did not recognize his discharge, claiming they had agreed he was to be employed until December and be paid $20,000 bonus.

Chancellor said the figure finally was reduced to $8,000, when McLaglen disclosed an affidavit signed by Glimm supporting his contentions that the money was due him.

Chancellor alleged the contents of the affidavit were false.

EX-PRESIDENT CALLS FOR NEW PARTY POLICY

Landon's Statement Also Seen as Hint Mid-Term Parley Will Be Held In '38.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Two developments caused persons in touch with the Republican national committee to predict today that it will sponsor a mid-term party convention early in 1938:

1. Former President Hoover devoted much of his speech in Boston last night to arguments in support of such a conference, which he said should adopt "positive and affirmative principles."

2. Alf M Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, conferred yesterday with National Chairman John Hamilton over methods of selecting delegates if a convention is approved by the committee at a special meeting Nov. 5.

Believe Parley Discussed.

There have been reports that Landon was not enthusiastic over the convention idea. Nevertheless the fact that he and Hamilton discussed such details as delegates led many followers of the situation to assume he believes a national meeting will be held.

Landon issued a statement saying:

"We are particularly concerned that if the national committee should decide to hold a convention that the rank and file of the party should be represented in the deliberations, as well as in the consideration of any report on behalf of the policy committee."

Both Landon's statement and Hoover's speech advised that the Republican party appeal to all opponents of the Roosevelt administration. Hoover used the suggestion of a coalition, previously advanced also by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, as another argument for a national convention.

"People fuse or coalesce around ideas and ideals," he said, "not around political bargains or stratagems."

Some critics of the convention proposal have expressed concern lest it might further individual candidacies for the 1940 presidential nomination.

Causes Discussion.

Hoover referred to that argument as a preface to declaring, "I do not want any public office." His statement started immediate political discussion somewhat like that aroused by Calvin Coolidge's famous "I do not choose to run" statement in 1927.

Some commentators noted that Hoover did not say he would "not accept" a nomination, but that he did "not want" an office.

"There is a mighty service to be performed," the former president told the Republican club of Massachusetts.

"This party must make the humanitarian objectives of the nation possible which are otherwise wrecked by wrongful and ineffective methods. It must reform destructive economic policies which undermine the standards of living of the economic middle class, and thus of all the people."

illusion around the purchase of a new dress or coat.

"The merchant must be woman-conscious," he declared, "and by that I mean that he must realize that women do most of the buying for the home and influence men's buying. Women are more independent and brave as shoppers than men and they demand exactly what they want, while men will often buy with little interest in what they purchase."

"Women like a busy store; they like bargains," Carter asserted. "They are not interested in price alone but seek value and are not misled by empty claims. They buy for future use and can often be sold more than one of any item if there are inducements. They are not as loyal as men, therefore their business must be courted and appreciated."

He praised Mansfield merchants for recognizing the value of light in their stores. A well-lighted store, he pointed out, takes on a new cheerfulness and serves as a greeting to prospective buyers.

"Be human in your advertising," he suggested. "Country people especially like the common touch in a store's selling appeal and there are more country people in the cities than in the country."

Carter addressed clerks in member stores of the association this morning in the Chamber of Commerce assembly room, where he showed charts illustrating the importance of courtesy, attentiveness and friendliness in building an efficient sales force.

Name 3 Directors.

The merchants' group elected three directors at last night's session to succeed J. R. Hodgson, R. B. Gardner and A. V. Tappan. Named to the board were Harry L. Frick, Mansfield manager of the F. W. Woolworth company; Vale Scouten, manager of the Quality Furniture company, and John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal. The directors will meet next week to select officers for the year.

J. E. Herbert, president of the association, presided at last night's dinner meeting which was attended by more than 100.

J. R. Ozanne, of the Chicago Merchandise Mart, who spoke at last year's annual meeting, was introduced. In a brief talk, Ozanne emphasized the importance of a personality for a store, stating that a business establishment "should say something to the customer to make him pleased and want to come back again."

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

ONE OF the real reasons this country is in its present messy state is because in the last few years there has existed no strong, virile, coherent opposition party, with an intelligible political philosophy and force enough to slow down the reckless excesses of an administration with an unparalleled mob appeal.

Within the administration itself—actually within the White House circle—there can be found men, justly apprehensive about conditions and with cause to doubt both the soundness of our one-man government and the wisdom of the man, who freely admit it. Hence, the proposal to hold a Republican convention next spring for the purpose of equipping that party with a set of sound and understandable principles ought to be welcomed by all citizens who feel that a continuance of unrestrained New Dealism is bound to end in general disaster.

APPARENTLY the national committee, which meets next month, will issue the call for this convention, which makes it harder to reconcile with reason the transparent efforts of certain Republican politicians to sabotage it in advance. With only sixteen members in the senate and eighty-eight in the house, lacking both a clearly defined direction and a basic policy, it is impossible to imagine a party more completely flattened. Yet it polled 17,000,000 votes last year and would have polled many millions more had its platform been less absurd and its appeal more sincere. In this situation any ordinary man would think that any movement to discover and frame intelligent reasons, however broad and general, for the continued existence of the party, would be supported by everyone with a stake in it—particularly as the idea happens to be the only one germinated within the party in a very long time.

INSTEAD, there is a more or less scattered, not very important, but nevertheless articulate antagonism, the purpose of which seems not to prevent a convention from being held but to minimize the chances of success when held. It is easy to understand this from Mr. Borah, who seems frowsily incapable of being for anyone's idea but his own and whose record in the Black affair ought to induce a certain reluctance in him to talk at all for a while. And it is easy to understand in Congressman Hamilton Fish, who is the blatant type of bumblepuppy "liberal," with a talent for doing the wrong thing in the worst way. But it is not easy to understand in others whose self-interest as well as common sense should make them enthusiastic for the plan.

STRIPPED OF the disingenuous words with which they clothe their objections, the real reason appears to be that it was first suggested by Mr. Hoover. That seems silly but it is the fact. In a case such as this, one would suppose that the soundness of the idea, rather than the personality of the man who had it, was the vital thing. Yet, here we find grown men who would rather stay flat on the ground, keep their party flat on the ground, and the country flat with it, than stand up and go along with a man whom they do not like—and don't like largely because they do not understand. This feeling of the small-bore Republican toward Mr. Hoover is one of the most curious things about present-day politics.

PARTLY, it is due to Mr. Hoover. Never a politician himself, he does not talk the language of politics nor get along very well with politicians. He has no gift at all for first-name calling nor for buttering newspaper men. His press conferences were dreadful affairs. Partly, it is due to the unfounded fear among the politicians that in some way the convention may make him the presidential candidate again. It is certain that no words which Mr. Hoover could use would convince those who do not want to be convinced that he neither wants, will seek nor would accept a nomination in 1940, when he will be nearly 67 years old.

HOWEVER, most of the feeling against Mr. Hoover among Republican politicians of a certain sort is because they were boobish enough to swallow the "Smear Hoover" dope, financed by Mr. Raskob and fomented by Mr. Jouett Liberty League Shouse, from 1928 to 1933. It is not surprising that in a depression the appetite of the people for that sort of thing should be keen, but it is a little remarkable that politicians of one party should become infected by the propaganda of the other party. Yet the fact is, the prejudices created by the four years of consistent attack are responsible for the efforts to scuttle the convention proposal today, the theory being that it must be opposed if it came from Hoover—that, at all costs, Hoover must be kept from coming to the front. They have developed a very silly anti-Hoover complex. It is a childish exhibition, but is about what might be expected from some.

AND NOW an effort is being made to make it appear that Mr. Landon is opposed to the convention for fear it might reinstate Mr. Hoover as the party leader and sidetrack him. Nothing Mr. Landon has said or done justifies attributing to him this singularly small attitude. Nevertheless, it would be a fine thing if Mr. Landon, the titular party leader, could see his way to putting aside personal considerations and publicly joining with Mr. Hoover, the former titular leader, in a movement that at least holds some hope of revitalizing an opposition party. To most it will seem in the interests of the country as well as the party that they should work together in this direction, and that neither be nominated in 1940. Should the convention be a complete failure, the condition of the Republicans would be no worse than it is now. It can't be.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—A news story that didn't happen: the walk-off the Warner lot of several contract writers and one director because the studio extended the usual visiting courtesies to Hal Roach's guest, Vittorio Mussolini.

The writers and director talked furiously all one morning, aired their political views, huddled with each other on the best dramatic moment to walk—and then called the whole thing off.

Which seemed the practical thing to do. Obviously, Vittorio would soon be gone from Hollywood. Why have their regular payday go with him?

But it's one sign how seriously Hollywood takes its politics and world affairs nowadays. A few years ago any visiting celebrity of Mussolini's filial fame would have been Hollywood's man of the hour, to be feted and sought after.

Dick Powell is a candidate for retirement from his duties as the colony's premier judge of contests. He has officiated — unwillingly if the truth must out—at pie-making, hog-calling, cow-milking, quilting and corn-husking competitions. He has been asked to judge the prettiest home-made dress worn by a girl in a West Virginia high school graduation, to pick a peach festival queen, and—of course—to judge bathing beauty contests.

He figures he has made from 30 to 40 friends—the winners—by his judging activities while acquiring several thousand enemies who competed and lost. His advice to new players would be: "Don't let yourself be made a contest judge, except perhaps for bathing beauties. In one of those contests, the satisfaction received may be worth the risk involved. You'll make enemies there too, but life is short and the work is pleasant.

Those Mauch twins are at it again. Billy, playing the lead in "Penrod and His Twin," (which Tarkington did not write) woke up one morning with the sniffles. Bobby wasn't doing anything much, so his mother put him into Billy's costume, and took him to the studio where he played Billy's role and none detected the deception.

Next day, when Billy was able to work, he asked whether he had been missed the day before. The director realized then that he had been duped. Which goes to show that in pictures as in poker two of a kind is a help.

Dad Won't Let Girl Have Dates

By VIRGINIA LEE

ISN'T THIS a pathetic letetr:

"DEAR MISS LEE: I will be 16 in a few months. I am the only girl in my crowd who isn't allowed to go with boys or even go out. When I get out, which is very seldom, my parents never believe me when I tell them where I was. Besides I must answer questions about whom I was with, where I was, what I did and many others.

"Naturally I am left out of all the fun and don't get any enjoyment or pleasure. I am in school most of the day, come home, run errands, eat, do dishes and sit around doing nothing, while all my girl friends are having fun.

"On top of all this my father says he isn't strict. I think I should have some freedom.

"LONESOME."

That is all very sad, my dear, and your dad probably thinks he is a very indulgent father because you have plenty to eat, nice clothes, I imagine, a fine home, and plenty of love and care. Personally I think that added to all these good things you should be allowed, very occasionally, to go to a party with boys and girls, attend school games with your friends, and entertain them in your home. Ask your father how you are going to learn to be at ease in company and to adapt yourself socially if you are not allowed to go out?

However, you have the most important things for a girl of your age—a good home and loving parents. Why not, while you are at home with "nothing to do," as you complain, cultivate your parents? After you go away from home to college or to work, you will have plenty of other folk's society, but right now you can talk and read with your parents, learn of their experiences, and be jolly pals with them. That is a different point of view, isn't it?

After all, you have your schoolmates all day. You can visit with them in school, at recess between classes, etc. It is hard, I know, to see other girls going out and having fun, but I imagine you will be allowed to do so, too, when you are a little older. Don't "sit around doing nothing." DO something. Get yourself a hobby. Read or draw, collect butterflies, stamps, moths or something. Make yourself happy at home, and when you are allowed to go out the boys and girls will find you a very fresh, interesting person—probably more so than if you had been going out all along with the crowd.

The Common Sense Rules Of Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Post: I work in a town some fifty miles from home, and go home every other week-end or so. I want to see my family of course, but another principal reason is to see my fiance whose work does not make it possible for him to come to see me very often. Mother thinks, in view of this, he should sometimes pay my carfare, but my brother says mother is wrong. I wish you'd express your opinion about this.

Answer: Your brother is right, a hundred per cent!

Dear Mrs. Post: So often I go to parties at which there is only a salad served with crackers and coffee, and notice that both the fork for salad and the spoon for the coffee are placed at the right. Shouldn't the fork be on the left where it is at any other meal?

Answer: The place for the fork is at the left, and the coffee spoon belongs on the saucer—always.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there anything incorrect about having a wedding ring set with diamonds? I have no engagement ring and my fiance suggested getting me a jeweled wedding band. My sister tells me she heard that you wrote sometime ago that you did not like such a ring. If you did write this, I wish you would tell me why.

Answer: I have never written that a circle of diamonds was not a lovely wedding ring. I have said, when asked, that a diamond wedding ring is not very practical because the setting does not wear longer than fifteen years or so, if the ring is never taken off. During many years my own had to be reset twice and lost stones replaced several times. Every one else I know has had the same experience, and if you are sentimental about never taking off the ring—then the diamond one is impossible. Otherwise, I think you should have the diamond band if you prefer it, by all means. I merely think it fair to tell you that a plain, very narrow band of white or yellow gold wedding ring and a diamond band to wear on top of it as a guard is more practical.

Oysters and fresh fish should be kept very cold. Oysters may be put into a covered jar and buried in cracked ice.

Too Weary From Work To Play

Some people are always worn out. Their work is a strain. They seem always too tired to play.

They miss much happiness. And often needlessly. For frequently it is constipation that is sapping away strength. Early fatigue, mental dullness, sleeplessness, can all be the results of constipation.

So keep regular. And to assist Nature, use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets! For, in addition to definite, gentle relief, they give mild stimulation to the flow of bile from the liver without the discomfort of drastic, irritating drugs. That's why millions use this laxative every year. Get Olive Tablets at your druggist. Only 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE IT EASIER

MAKE IT EASY for your partner. Tell him what to do, if you can. Better still, do it yourself if you can, so that there will be no difficulty about his decision. By adopting such a course, you can sometimes make the defeat of a contract certain, whereas any other move would be highly speculative.

	♠ J 10 8 4 ♥ A Q J ♦ 9 4 2 ♣ Q J 10
♠ 7 ♥ K 10 9 6 5 2 ♦ K Q J 10 ♣ 6 5	N. W. E. S.	♠ A 5 2 ♥ 3 ♦ A 8 7 5 ♣ 8 7 4 3 2
	♠ K Q 9 6 3 ♥ 8 7 4 ♦ 6 3 ♣ A K 9

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After South's opening bid of 1-Spade, West overcalled with 2-Hearts, North jumped to 3-Spades and South went to 4-Spades.

When the diamond K was led, East signaled for a continuance of the suit, so the diamond Q followed and then the J, South ruffing the third round of the suit. The spade A was now forced out and it was too late then for the opponents to make any effort to defeat the contract.

On the very first lead East had his opportunity to set 4-Spades, but he did not take advantage of it. His correct procedure was to overtake his partner's diamond K with the A and lead his singleton heart. Holding the trump A, it should have been evident to him that he was bound to get into the lead early and should have looked ahead sufficiently to provide for a ruff of at least one heart. This play would have resulted in setting the contract, for after winning the trump, East knew he could put his partner in with a diamond so as to get a heart ruff.

	♠ None ♥ A Q 8 7 5 ♦ Q 7 ♣ A Q 5 4 3 2
♠ Q 6 5 4 2 ♥ 2 ♦ A K 5 4 ♣ J 9 8	N. W. E. S.	♠ J 7 ♥ J 10 9 6 3 ♦ 10 9 6 2 ♣ K 10

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

Palms and other house plants often suffer most from dust. It should be remembered that plants breathe through their leaves and these must be kept clean or the life of the plant is imperiled. Palms, castor oil plants and others with strong, firm leaves can with advantage, be sponged free of dust once a week or so, while the more fragile kinds of plants can be taken to the pantry sink for gentle overhead watering with lukewarm water.

Blend Violet With Powder For Evening

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

"I AM A FAIR-SKINNED individual, and have found that a peach-bloom shade of powder blends excellently with my coloring during the daytime. However, though I can't understand why, my skin always seems to have a yellowish tinge at night. How can I make my skin look fair and white in the evening?

"ADRIENNE."

It is not the powder, but the artificial lights of evening that give your face an unnatural yellowish appearance. A violet shade of powder is generally suggested to dissipate this effect. Mix about one-fourth of a violet shade of powder in with the peach-bloom powder that you generally use, and employ the mixture for evening wear.

Just be sure that you do not use too much of the violet powder, as it may then give your face a purplish tinge. If properly blended, this powder mixture will make your skin look delicately fair and well-groomed under the artificial lights of evening.

"I have short, stubby fingers, and try to keep my nails long and pointed, but as I do a great deal of typing every day, they continually break off. What would you suggest that I do? ELSIE"

I would suggest, in the first place, that you shape your nails differently. To be in good taste, the shape of your nails should harmonize with the shape of your hands, and your mode of living. The long, pointed nails look best on long, tapering fingers, and not on short, stubby ones. And if your daily occupation is such that the long nails are continually broken, you should adopt a shorter form.

In the second place, I would suggest that you put rubber keys on your typewriter. This will lessen the chances of the nails being broken by the hard keys. And in the third place, I would suggest that you massage a bit of warmed olive oil into the base of your nails nightly before retiring. This will make the nails less soft and brittle, and more immune to breaking.

"I consulted a scalp specialist recently and was told, among other things, that I should use 'pestrissage' on my scalp daily. I didn't want to betray my ignorance, so I didn't inquire; but I'd be extremely grateful to you if you would tell me just what 'pestrissage' is. Because I do want to have pretty, healthy hair. FLORENCE."

Petrissage is nothing more than a method of massage. It indicates a deep, kneading, pinching movement. This form of massage is excellent for the scalp and hair health, as it stimulates the circulation through the scalp's tissues, and increases its suppleness.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AT THE note of querulousness in my mother-in-law's voice, my lips quirked into an involuntary wry smile whose meaning I hoped she did not guess, while my shoulders squared, also without volition, as if they were preparing to receive a wonted burden which had been absent for a time.

Not that I consider my husband's mother a burden. She is very dear to me, and I know that her affection for me is almost as strong as if I were her daughter instead of an "in-law." But I also know that I am never my untrammeled self when I am with her. She is so sensitive, so easily offended, that I have to keep constant watch over my actions, my speech, my eyes, even my facial expressions, lest she find cause for offense.

Long experience has told me that while ordinarily, and with careful management, she is quickly restored to good humor, yet there are times, especially if I am careless about placating her, when her offended dignity grows into a decided tantrum. Retirement to her room and refusal to see anyone save Dickey, combined with petty persecutions of Katie, make life hectic at the farm until time wears out her rancor. Then, finally placated, she returns to the family circle.

Madge Placates Her.

But like many other women of her generation, she rises so adequately to any real emergency, and has within her soul such reserve stores of kindliness and wisdom that one cannot help but forgive her captiousness. With a lively remembrance of all these things, there was real warmth in the embrace and kiss I gave her when I had crossed swiftly to her side.

"Remember that you were here!" I repeated with what I flattered myself was just the right note of indignation. "Do you think I could ever forget that you are here to welcome us? You and Father spell home to me. But I don't think you are looking as well as you should. There are circles under your eyes."

She bridled and tossed her head.

"I am perfectly well. I can endure more than you can now," she retorted. There was no rancor in her voice, and I knew that I had struck the right note. She is proud of her endurance, but she does not like to be told she looks well. A note of solicitude is always in order in any inquiry made concerning her health.

An "Ancestress."

But I was painfully conscious that my inquiry was something more than the perfunctory one she demanded. She was as stately as ever, with her abundant white hair beautifully coiffed, and her tall figure attired in the flowing gray gown with lace fichus which she affects, and which make her look, as Dicky says, "like an ancestress."

To all appearances she was as well as usual, yet there always lingers in our background the consciousness of a heart weakness in Dicky's mother, of which, we know, we must keep constant watch. But a certain pallor in her face and a tired look in her eyes made me wonder if she were as well as she boasted, or if some temporary fatigue were all that was wrong with her.

"You are the eighth wonder of the world," I told her admiringly, and was rewarded by a flush of color in her pale cheeks. Then Dicky tactfully intervened with a casual query to her, and gave me a chance to speak to Mrs. Ticer, hovering anxiously in the background. She might have interrupted me, but never would she have intruded upon a conversation in which my doughty mother-in-law was a participant.

My buxom neighbor, gray haired and comely, with coloring that said she had been the milkmaid type of beauty in her youth, was a familiar figure with her clean, blue print dress straining over a tightly-laced, old-fashioned high-busted corset. She must have had a number on hand when they went out of fashion, for she never has changed her style of dress in all the years I have known her. She had been smiling anxiously at me across my mother-in-law's shoulder, and as I went to her with out-stretched hand, she clasped it warmly in both of hers.

Feud Still Raging.

"It sure is a sight for sore eyes to see you once again," she said with the familiar phrasing I have heard so often from her lips. "I was afraid you wouldn't get here until after Katie got back from her vacation, and I did want to cook one of my old-fashioned dinners for you."

Her inflections said that she wanted me to have one dinner really worthwhile before Katie returned, and I kept back an amused smile with difficulty, for the culinary feud between Mrs. Ticer and Katie, both cooks with few peers, has furnished the farmhouse family with mirth—and super-excellent cooking—for years.

"Dicky and I have been guessing all the way down what you were going to have. But we both agreed on one thing. There must be some of your hot biscuits."

"They're all ready to pop into the oven now," she said. "Dinner will be on the table in 20 minutes."

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Oct. 28.

FAIRLY ACTIVE conditions, both in business and in employment, are forecast from the lunar aspects. While these should thrive, there is a sign of some peril through rash, tumultuous or quarrelsome conduct, which may also have a disagreeable reaction on the private life. A rather sudden and surprising bit of good news may give much profitable satisfaction.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a rather lively and flourishing year, with the element of good news at the root of such activity in both business and employment. However, this happy and profitable course of events may be placed in jeopardy by a tendency to irritability and reckless and impetuous conduct.

A child born on this day may be versatile, clever, alert and quick to grasp opportunities in business or employment. Also it may have a rather tempestuous, aggressive and impulsive nature, calling for early discipline.

DATE GINGER CAKE—Four tablespoons fat, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup sweet or sour milk, one-half cup molasses, one-half cup nuts, one cup cut dates, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon soda, one and three-fourths cups flour. Cream the fat, add the sugar gradually, add the egg and beat well. Mix the molasses and the milk. Mix and sift dry ingredients, add alternately with the liquid to the creamed fat and sugar. Add nuts and dates. Bake in a moderate oven 30 to 45 minutes.

MINNESOTA FAVORED OVER IRISH

By EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO — (AP) — Minnesota and Notre Dame will be fighting Saturday for the right-of-way on "the road back."

Their battle at Minneapolis, expected to attract 65,000 spectators, may be one of the most stubbornly fought games of the season, for defeat would smash to bits the hopes of both elevens to regain national prestige lost through slow starts this year.

Both teams are on the victory trail, Minnesota as a result of its decisive win over Michigan and Notre Dame through its fighting, last period conquest of Navy. Minnesota, which went through a long drill featured by passing and punting formations yesterday, is favored to win. The Irish, are in a position to upset the dope, and the performance of Jack McCarthy and Bunny McCormick against Navy undoubtedly is causing Bernie Bierman of the Gophers plenty of worry.

Coach Bierman has ordered secret practice for the Gophers the remainder of the week. His squad is expected to be at top strength for the Irish, who worked on defense.

Ranking next to the Irish-Gopher battle in interest will be the Northwestern-Wisconsin clash at Madison. The Wildcats will be out to take their defeat by Ohio State out on the Badgers, but Wisconsin threw a scare into the Lynn Waldorf team last year and may do it again

Chicago May Quit Big 10 For Intramural Sports.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Daily Maroon, University of Chicago's student newspaper, will conduct a poll Friday to determine under-graduate feeling on the question of whether the university should continue to participate in intercollegiate athletics.

With Chicago's athletic fortunes at probably their lowest point, the Maroon has started a campaign for a program of intramural sports to replace Chicago's intercollegiate setup, and its editors want to know what the student body thinks of the proposition. Reports that Chicago might withdraw from the Big Ten have been denied repeatedly by athletic officials.

De Nero to Stay In Ram Backfield

Sophomore's Play In Butler Game Cinches Back Post for This Week's Tilt With Freddies; League Games Thursday.

DOUG DE NERO, a sophomore with some experience as a lineman, promises to develop into a capable back for Madison high school, and until further notice, Coach Al Fendrick will keep the hard-driving youngster in the ball toting department.

De Nero made his debut as a halfback last Friday as the Rams raced over Butler, 25 to 6, to keep their record unmarred, and performed brilliantly, to say the least

Work Ahead for Doug.

Fendrick expects De Nero to do a lot of the ball carrying against Fredericktown under the Madison lamps Thursday night when the Rams seek their third straight Mid-State league victory in their defense of the championship.

Bill Brightbill or Gerald Hershey will start at quarterback.

BUCKS LACK OLD PUNCH

Schmidt Hopes to Bolster Offensive Record In Remaining Games.

COLUMBUS —(UP)— There was a loud rumbling through the ranks of Western conference football teams today and it was generated by Francis A. (Shut the gates of mercy) Schmidt of Ohio State.

Schmidt treasures big scores with the same fondness a miser does gold nuggets and as the Bucks prepared to slide into the easier half of their schedule the scarlet and gray mentor intended to see that the team's offensive record was bolstered.

Score Only 46 Points.

Against four major foes during the first half of the schedule, the Bucks accumulated only 46 points and unless Ohio State does a rapid "about face" the current eleven will compile the poorest offensive record of any Schmidt coached team since the gruff Texan came here.

When Schmidt made his debut here in 1934, the Bucks ran up 227 points in eight games Only in two contests that season did Ohio State fail to score less than 28 points. Colgate limited the scarlet to 10 points and Illinois granted only 13. The Bucks trambled every other foe by lopsided counts.

In 1935 Ohio State aggregated 237 points. A field day in which the Bucks ran up 85 points against a woefully weak Drake team gave the total its biggest boost.

A year ago Ohio State had a point total of 160. More than half of the total was made against two teams, New York university and the University of Chicago. N. Y. U was beaten 60 to 0 and Chicago 44 to 0.

Chicago furnishes the opposition for Ohio State this week-end and the hapless Maroons likely will provide the first stepping stone in Schmidt's desire for a more impressive looking point total.

Intends to Win.

The Bucks coach indicated today he was "out to get all we can." Asked directly if he would start and use his reserve material almost exclusively against the weak Chicago team, Schmidt said: "No The regulars will start. We intend to win the game. What formerly was considered a commanding lead doesn't stand up long now days I'll probably use the reserves some though."

"Wolves" Are Howling For Starn's Scalp.

The "wolves" are howling for the scalp of G. Donald (Rosie) Starns, head football coach and athletic director at Kent State. With a record of one victory and four defeats for the current season, Starns is being "panned" by fans and students, who allege he is "too interested in other sports" to place football on a winning basis. The "Kent Stater," student newspaper, recently charged members of the team were conditioned poorly and had bet against themselves in games. Starns went to Kent State from Ashland high school at the start of the 1935 season.

with Gene Harmon and Joe Miller filling out the other backfield posts. Fendrick has decided to keep Miller at fullback in place of Capt. Bill Moritz, who has been returned to an end position.

Mel Harner, who has seen some service in the backfield, has been returned to the line, and he will probably be at a tackle position Thursday night.

Fredericktown is not expected to offer the Rams a great deal of trouble. The Freddies, who have yet to win their first game, have not scored a point in a league game.

Two Other Games.

Two other league games are on Thursday's schedule Mt. Gilead, also undefeated, plays at Danville and Butler goes to Loudonville Bellville is host to Ashley in a non-league tilt Thursday afternoon.

The games are scheduled Thursday instead of Friday due to the teachers' conference to be held this week-end.

It Happened On The Grid

In 1933, Oregon State originated the "pyramid play." When a team scored on O. S and lined up for the try-for-point, Oregon State's tackles boosted their 6-foot-6-inch center into the air to block the kick The unusual move proved successful twice in that season.—By Alonzo L. EDWARDS, WHO CAME UP 'HARD WAY', IS POWER BEHIND RESERVE'S RECORD

Attains Goal as One of State's Outstanding Coaches By Hard Work.

EIGHT years ago a curly haired young giant stood out in heroic relief as an underdog Wittenberg college football team battled a highly favored Ohio State eleven on even terms for three bruising quarters.

Late in the next period a badly cut tongue began to swell and through already puffed lips the young giant muttered to his teammates: "I can't talk any more, but if any of you guys fold up I'll kick hell out of you."

Possess Flaming Spirit.

That was the flaming spirit that helped make "Big Bill" Edwards one of the greatest linemen in Ohio collegiate history and it is the same spirit that has carried him to a high place in coaching ranks

Under Edwards' astute direction Western Reserve has compiled one of the finest records of any college grid team in the nation. The Red Cats never have been beaten since he took charge of them after the untimely death of "Sad Sam" Willaman prior to the start of the 1935 season.

When Western Reserve beat Boston university Saturday, it was the team's 18th straight victory and stretched its string of unbeaten contests to 28 Only a tie with Ohio Wesleyan in 1935 mars an otherwise perfect slate.

Thanks to foresight by the wily Karl Davis, Western Reserve athletic director, the Red Cats get good material, but material alone isn't the story of the school's football success. The power behind the remarkable record is Edwards

"BIG BILL" EDWARDS

Realizes Ambition.

Edwards makes no claim of being a master-mind or a magician Back of his success is a burning desire, he has had since boyhood to be a great football coach, and when the opportunity to attain that goal came he was ready for it.

"Big Bill" gained his present high rank by coming up "the hard way." The son of a Massillon coal miner, Edwards had to fight for everything he got—and fight he did.

After a brilliant high school career at Massillon, Edwards went to Kiski at Saltsburg, Pa., for a year of preparatory work and then enrolled at Ohio State. He captained the Buck freshman team, but the following season transferred to Wittenberg.

Throughout his career at Wittenberg, Edwards, at center, was the stand-out player of a team that was one of the toughest in the Buckeye conference. A "rover" on defense, "Big Bill" was uncanny at diagnosing plays and then smashing them. He holds the distinction of being the only player in history to captain Wittenberg grid teams for two successive seasons.

Served as Assistant.

Following graduation he served as assistant coach at Springfield high and then moved on to Fostoria high as head coach. From there he jumped to Western Reserve as Willaman's assistant.

As to coaching technique Edwards isn't a "slave driver." He does everything possible to make practice fun for his gridders and that is one reason the Red Cats never have gone "stale."

Unlike many coaches, Edwards doesn't believe in frenzied pregame or half-time locker room talks to key his men.

"Any boy who wants to play college football," he said, "has all the emotional equipment he needs. Telling him he should fight for his school is a waste of words. He already knows it. Dramatic stuff didn't go during my playing days and it doesn't go now. I played football because I loved it and so do these boys."

Western Reserve players have no training rules placed before them. "If a player breaks training," Edwards said, "I know it and he knows I know it. It isn't necessary to say anything. When a fellow gets to college he is a man and I treat him as one."

Never Criticizes Openly.

Edwards never criticizes players before their teammates. "It's bad psychology," he pointed out, "when something goes wrong we talk it over quietly. The one thing I have that the players haven't is football experience I try to share it with them, but don't ram it down their throats."

The highlights of Edwards' coaching career? A 33 to 19 victory over Cornell in 1935, a 32 to 3 triumph over Case last season and Saturday's 7 to 0 defeat of Boston U.

"The Boston U. victory was a sweet one," Edwards said, "the easterners called my boys 'bush leaguers' and they didn't like it We wanted to show them up and did."

Edwards is only 32 years old and definitely on the road toward his ambition of being a "big name coach." His team seeks to extend its unmatched record Saturday when it meets the University of Dayton at Dayton.

Edwards is very popular in Mansfield He was the speaker at The News-Journal football banquet for the Mansfield high Tygers last fall.

Ball Players Have It Soft, Oh, Yeah?

They Also Have to Work to Keep Wolf Away From the Door In the Wintertime.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

BALL players lead an easy life. In the good ol' summertime, the players report at the ball field around noon, and they're through for the day after a couple of hours of play Then in the fall and winter they just take things easy until it is time to report for spring training.

This is true in the case of the high-salaried major league stars. They can afford to lead the life of Riley, but not the minor leaguers They've also got to hustle in the wintertime to keep the wolf from the door. Their earnings during the baseball season do not amount to enough to permit them to remain idle in the off-season.

Hal Cheny Has Job. Picking Potatoes.

TAKE Mansfield's championship Red Sox, for instance. Very few of the boys who helped carry the Mansfield banner to the Ohio State league title this year are not working right now And those who are not working are looking for jobs

The last word from Hal Cheney, whose fancy pitching during the dying days of the season was a factor in the Mansfield triumph, is that he is picking potatoes at his home in Maine Steve Patras was in Chicago visiting his mother until a week ago. Now he's in California—looking for a job.

Spartichino

Steve Vesek, the grandest little shortstop ever to grace a Mansfield diamond, is earning his off-season money the hard way. Steve is working in the coal mines at Jenners, Pa.

Georgie Bierschenk is not working but he is not idle, either. The diminutive infielder is getting ready for the cage season down there in the Carolinas, near the home of Lonny Haulbrook, who is employed in a cotton mill.

"Sparky" Spartichino, probably the most popular member of the Mansfield club, is back home in Cambridge, Mass., and waiting for job offers. Incidentally, Spartichino is quite a hockey player, and has turned down a couple of pro offers because he prefers baseball. Johnny Barrett is looking for a job in Lowell, Mass. After returning home, Barrett worked out with the Boston Red Sox until the close of the season.

George Schneidmuller is helping his dad, a real estate broker in Brooklyn, but is planning to get a job on a farm where he believes he can put on some poundage Blackie Rochevot is also working for his dad, a soft drink distributor in Buffalo. Blackie's working on a truck

O'Brien Undecided About Work, School.

BOB O'BRIEN is also in California trying to decide whether to hunt a job or return to St. Mary's college. Frank Stinson is another California boy, but he's got a job driving a tractor in Calico, Mex. The winter baseball season starts down there in a couple of weeks and Frank's rarin' to go

Manager Dewey Stover and Al Veigel, who with Roy Lee of Toledo, formed the Ohio delegation on the team, are also at work. Dewey's a highway engineer at Tiffin, while Veigel is painting houses in Tuscarawas.

Whether Lee, Lefty Heath of Kalamazoo or Fenton Beaman of North Carolina are working is not known. Andy Gilbert, of course is not. He's still wearing the brace around his injured neck back home in Latrobe, Pa.

Promise Trouble

Reserve Frosh Expected to Offer Tygers Toughest Test of Season.

THE young men on whose shoulders hang the football future of Western Reserve university of Cleveland are expected to provide the Mansfield high school gridiron performers a heavy afternoon of pigskin wrestling at Stadium field Saturday.

The Red Cats' freshmen aggregation is one of the finest ever assembled at the Cleveland school, according to "Big Bill" Edwards, whose Reserve teams have not lost a game since he took over the reins from the late Sam Wallaman three years ago.

Not Academy Team.

The team to face the Tygers Saturday must not be confused with the Western Reserve Academy, which is a high school. The players to engage the Tygers are freshmen in the university, and they are now being groomed for varsity duty next fall.

Karl Davis, athletic director of the Cleveland school, notified Coach Russ Murphy that the game Saturday will mark the first appearance of the freshmen against outside opposition. The only other regular game the frosh will play will be with the West Virginia freshmen Nov. 13.

Although the freshmen do not play a regular schedule, they have seen plenty of service in practice tilts. They have fared well in practice tilts against the Reserve varsity, unbeaten in 28 games.

The squad is made up of some of the outstanding gridsters on Ohio and Pennsylvania high school teams last fall.

Toughest on Sched.

Coach Murphy regards the Reserve game as the toughest on the Mansfield schedule this year. All of the players have had from two to three years of regular varsity service.

The Reserve game fills one of two open dates on the Tygers' schedule. The other open date is a weak from Saturday, but it will not be filled.

Old Favorites To Return

Many of the old favorites of the Billy Ross wrestling regime will return to Mansfield this season to appear on Matchmaker Tim Nolan's shows at the Armory.

Nolan announced today that Walter Stratton, who appeared here frequently under Ross, will have a place in one of the light-heavyweight tournament matches to be staged on the opening card of the fall season Monday night.

Stratton's opponent has not been drawn, but Nolan expected to know the identity of his foe today.

In addition to Stratton, the old favorites due to return are Buck Weaver, former Chicago university football star; Red Sims, Black Panther, Angelo Martino, "Shiek" Marella and John Carr.

LEAVES MAJOR TAX CHANGES UP TO CONGRESS

Treasury Believes Existing Rates, With Minor Revision, Are Adequate.

WASHINGTON— (U.P.)—Treasury tax experts intend to let congress take the initiative in making major changes in tax rates confining their recommendations to recodifying and simplifying the revenue laws.

A source close to administration fiscal officials said that the treasury's revenue students still think that existing rates, with a few minor exceptions, are adequate. With greater efficiency in administration, they feel that the present rates would be more productive.

Map Recommendations.

The treasury's recommendations are now being prepared for presentation to the house ways and means sub-committee when it begins hearings on new tax legislation, Nov. 4. Congressional and administration sources have emphasized that the tax bill would not be ready before the next regular session.

Treasury experts are considering, it was understood, the desirability of making some revisions in the undistributed corporate profits tax and the capitals-gains-and-losses tax, levies which business interests and some government officials believe are impending recovery.

The capital-gains-and-losses tax has been blamed by some quarters for much of the heavy selling in the theory being that many investors dumped their securities on the market at a loss, which they could offset against previous gains under the law, in order to cut down their income tax liability.

Could Tell The Difference After Taking World's Tonic A Week

Newark Man Was Full of Aching Pains—Back Was Stiff, Legs Hurt, Often Felt Dizzy.

Was Constipated All The Time—Says He Feels Like A Different Person Now.

"I hadn't been taking World's Tonic a week before I realized it was helping me, so I kept it up and now I am better than in a long time," stated Mr. George Murray, residing at 395 National Dr., Newark, O., who has been a farmer all his life, but is now retired.

"I was never free of stomach trouble unless I took some kind of medicine to keep me moving. If I neglected this I always suffered later with aching pains and my legs hurt so bad that I was kept awake many nights and had to rub them so I could get to sleep My back was stiff as a board and every time I stooped over or turned quickly a sharp pain would shoot through my body.

"I was also troubled with biliousness and frequently felt dizzy with a bad taste in my mouth, breath was offensive, tongue coated and my skin had a muddy appearance.

"Since taking a few bottles of World's Tonic I can safely say that I'm feeling better than for a long time. My whole system feels like it has had a thorough cleansing. The constipation has been relieved and I am as regular as the clock. I never feel dizzy or sluggish. The bad breath and vile taste in my mouth have disappeared and my skin looks fresh and healthy.

"Best of all though, is getting rid of stomach trouble and the relief World's Tonic gave my aching legs, back and arms. All those pains have passed off and I get restful sleep every night. World's Tonic is a good medicine and I do not hesitate to advise everyone who is suffering like I did, to try it."

World's Tonic is not an old style nasty medicine to take. It does not contain habit forming drugs or narcotics

If World's Tonic did so much good for this well-known, reliable man living right here at home, isn't it reasonable to believe it will do the same for you?

World's Tonic is for sale at CENTRAL DRUG STORE—Adv. (D73)

HAS BALANCE

State Has $13,312,017 Left In Public Works Fund.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The budget bureau has reported Ohio's balance in public works administration commitments totaled $13,312,017 as of Sept. 30.

Bureau aids, noting a recent statement by President Roosevelt that unused public works project money could not be diverted to other projects, said the undisbursed funds were authorized under the National Industry recovery act of 1935, the Emergency Relief Act of 1935, the First Deficiency Act of 1936, and the Public Works Extension Act of 1937.

Ohio's balance was calculated as follows: $3,019,968.37 from the NIRA of 1935; $2,052,786.16 from the Relief Act of 1935; $2,002,843 54 from the 1936 deficiency act and $6,236,419 from the Public Works extension act of 1937.

WORK FOR BILL

Solons to Seek Passage of U. S. Gas Control Act.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Advocates of a bill to authorize federal control of natural gas in interstate commerce have announced they would seek consideration by the forthcoming special session.

The measure passed the house last session but the senate failed to consider it.

Representative Robert Cross of Cleveland and other Ohio congresmen said the bill would tend to lower rates in communities which pipe their gas across state lines. State public utilities commissions lack jurisdiction to investigate rates, and the pending bill would authorize the federal power commission to regulate the transportation and sale of the fuel in interstate commerce.

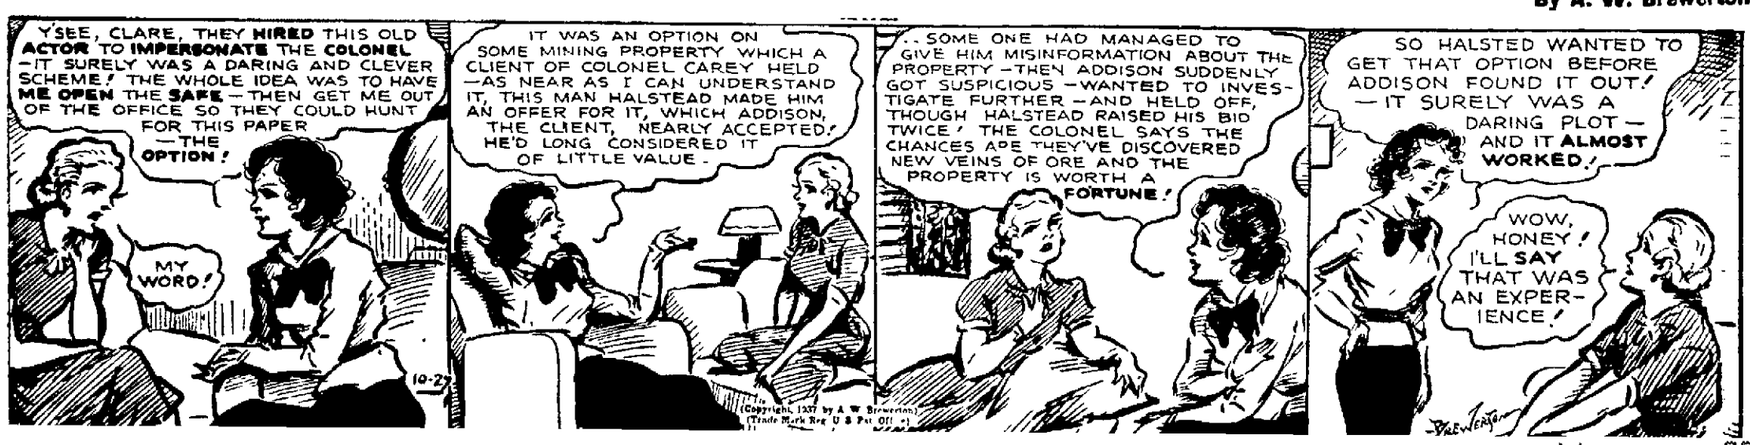
PAM—Further Facts of the "Plot." By A. W. Brewerton



Y'SEE, CLARE, THEY HIRED THIS OLD ACTOR TO IMPERSONATE THE COLONEL —IT SURELY WAS A DARING AND CLEVER SCHEME! THE WHOLE IDEA WAS TO HAVE ME OPEN THE SAFE — THEN GET ME OUT OF THE OFFICE SO THEY COULD HUNT FOR THIS PAPER —THE OPTION!
MY WORD!
10-27
IT WAS AN OPTION ON SOME MINING PROPERTY WHICH A CLIENT OF COLONEL CAREY HELD —AS NEAR AS I CAN UNDERSTAND IT, THIS MAN HALSTEAD MADE HIM AN OFFER FOR IT, WHICH ADDISON, THE CLIENT, NEARLY ACCEPTED. HE'D LONG CONSIDERED IT OF LITTLE VALUE -
(Copyright, 1937 by A. W. Brewerton) (Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)
- SOME ONE HAD MANAGED TO GIVE HIM MISINFORMATION ABOUT THE PROPERTY —THEN ADDISON SUDDENLY GOT SUSPICIOUS —WANTED TO INVESTIGATE FURTHER —AND HELD OFF, THOUGH HALSTEAD RAISED HIS BID TWICE! THE COLONEL SAYS THE CHANCES ARE THEY'VE DISCOVERED NEW VEINS OF ORE AND THE PROPERTY IS WORTH A FORTUNE!
SO HALSTED WANTED TO GET THAT OPTION BEFORE ADDISON FOUND IT OUT! —IT SURELY WAS A DARING PLOT — AND IT ALMOST WORKED!
WOW, HONEY! I'LL SAY THAT WAS AN EXPERIENCE!

STEEL COMMON DRAWS DIVIDEND

Rule of Giant Corporation Passes to Younger Hands as Directors Meet.

try's largest unit in 1925.

Simplification of the capital structure, closer integration of plant operations and a "revitalization" through infusion of new and younger blood were the three "facets" of the task Taylor wished to accomplish before relinquishing the reins.

With this done he will assume a less active role as a director and member of the finance committee and Irvin will serve as vice chairman of the board.

Complementing the shifts in the top executive ranks, directors chose J. L. Perry, president of Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company, Birmingham, Ala., subsidiary, for the presidency of the Carnegie-Illinois as successor to Fairless, and named Robert Gregg, vice president of the parent corporation, as president of the Birmingham unit.

With Taylor's retirement next April, Ender M. Voorhees, vice chairman of the finance committee, will assume the chairmanship vacated by Stettinius. Voorhees, a former vice president of Johns-Manville company, came to the steel corporation early this year.

Rounding out the drama of personalities, the board declared a dividend on the common stock for the first time in five and a half years. A payment of $1 was ordered in token of the large profits made during the first nine months of the year, although the action coincided with a sharp lull in steel demand and an operating rate of around 54 per cent of capacity as against 80 or higher earlier in the year.

WINS $3,000

ASHLAND—An award of $3,000 was rendered in favor of the plaintiff in the retrial of suit brought by Newton L. Crist against William K. Treace in common pleas court here. In the original trial, the judgment has been for $500. The verdict was signed by 11 jurors.

Crist had sued for $7,000 damages, for injuries alleged to have been sustained when he was struck by a car driven by Treace on an Ashland street, Nov. 7, 1933.

HALF MILLION IN STOLEN U. S. NOTES LOCATED

Note Leads Federal Agents to Lock Box Containing $674,000 Loot.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stolen United States treasury notes valued with their coupons at $674,209.29 have been found in a lock box in a subway station.

United States District Attorney Lamar Hardy and Reed Vetterli, local head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced the recovery. They said the notes were part of the loot of the Manhattan company's Wall Street branch Jan. 20, 1935.

The place of concealment, they said, was the luggage checking box, a key-and-coin operated device, on the northbound train platform of the Seventh avenue interborough subway's 59th street station.

The Manhattan company bond theft totalled $1,456,000 and followed a similar theft of $590,000 from the United States Trust company the preceding month.

Search Widespread.

Department of justice men followed a thread of clues which, with the co-operation of Scotland Yard and the Surete National of France, led them to London and Paris after the loot.

Meyer Frankenberg, alleged by the federal government to have been the principal in the Manhattan company theft, pleaded guilty to a charge of transporting $440,000 in stolen bonds to France, where he was arrested. Assistant United States District Attorney John J. Dowling went with three special agents of the F. B. I. to a midtown club as a result of "information" received after Frankenberg pleaded guilty.

Dowling and the agents received at the club an anonymous message delivered by a telegraph messenger boy. It was in a white envelope which had been addressed with a pencil. The envelope contained instructions and a key to the luggage box.

In the box the investigators found two long white envelopes containing 13 United States treasury notes, six of which bore face values of $100,000 each, the remainder, or smaller denominations, making a grand total of $640,000 face value.

The find brought the total recovery from the two thefts to about $1,790,000. Still unaccounted for were two $100,000 notes and a number of smaller ones.

Thus far, eight alleged participants in the thefts and conspiracy have been convicted and sentenced to jail. A ninth, Benjamin Espe, has been sentenced on his plea of guilty, and the tenth, Frankenberg, awaits sentence.

U. S. STEEL UP AFTER LIBERAL DIVIDEND SPLIT

Opens Unchanged Before Rising Fractionally on Active Dealings.

NEW YORK—(AP)—U. S. Steel gathered some forward energy in the stock market today in response to the more liberal than expected dividend action of the corporation late yesterday.

Although numerous issues braced up fractions to a point or so, others yielded to mild profit selling around the second hour.

U. S. Steel opened unchanged on a block of 3,000 shares and then rose fractionally on active dealings. Chrysler, after an opening loss of more than a point, moved into the gains column on brisk trading. Bonds opened mixed. Grains and cotton were steady.

At the start of trading Wall Street circles surveyed mixed reports from the steel and electric power industries.

The steel trade, "Iron Age," said, feels spotty demand will prevail the rest of the year. Meanwhile, it is looking to the motor industry for enough business to prevent a further downturn in operations.

Although the drop in production has probable occurred more rapidly than the decline in consumption, the Review said the time of replenishment buying is "still uncertain."

Output of electric power in the week ended Oct. 23, increased .2 of one per cent over the previous week.

TWO TAKE OWN LIVES

DAYTON—(AP)—Acting Coroner R. D. Snyder attributed ill health today as the cause for two suicides. He reported Joseph Michael, 68, shot himself, and W. L. Lohman, 37, hanged himself on the grounds of a hospital where he was a patient.

THEATER

PARAMOUNT'S colorful Mexican musical "Ensenada" took on added importance with the announcement that Don Ameche and Dorothy Lamour will have the romantic leads, with "Robin" Burns and Martha Raye as the comedy headliners. Ameche, under contract to 20th Century-Fox, goes to Paramount under a trade agreement whereby Randolph Scott is to be the enchange player. "Ensenada" will carry elaborate backgrounds, musical score, native orchestras and native dancers. Charles Butterworth, Charles Bickford and Anthony Quinn also are included in the cast.

Popular Trio.

A popular trio of players, Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell and Margaret Lindsay, bring Adela Rogers St. John's Cosmopolitan magazine story, "Angle Shooter" to the screen under the title of "Back In Circulation." The Ohio offers it the last half of the week, starting Thursday. It is a newspaper story with the romance of the editor and the girl feature writer running stormily against the real plot—a beautiful woman accused of killing her husband and being convicted because of the biased and prejudicial reports of the crime carried in the tabloid newspaper. A smart newspaperwoman, sensing the verdict is all wrong, gets the facts, scores a scoop, clears the woman — and turns to her romance with the editor.

Joe Brown Comedy.

Elmer Lane, hero of the Saturday Evening Post stories by Richard Macualay, comes to life in "Riding On Air," a Joe E. Brown comedy in which the large mouthed comedian is a newspaper man who invests all of his money in a new radio controlled airplane. The climax of the story is a wild chase through the clouds, between the plane of a band of perfume smugglers and the radio plane with Joe at the controls. It is the sort of climax and wild chase that Brown fans have come to expect from his pictures. It ends happily for the small town newspaper man who has been anything but a hero to the home town folks. Florence Rice, who's getting a lot of parts lately, plays the heroine. Guy Kibbee and Vinton Haworth are in the cast. The picture opens at the Madison tomorrow.

Turn to Magazines.

Magazine stories furnish the material for most of Mansfield's movie fare this week, for the Majestic theater feature, "A Bride For Henry" is adapted from a Liberty magazine story. It is a romantic comedy of a wealthy young socialite, who when left waiting at the altar hastily picks out another groom so that the wedding can go on. But the intended divorce never comes off, for the bride reaches a new decision after a honeymoon for three. Anne Nagel, Warren Hull, Henry Mollison, and Claudia Dell in the cast. A mystery story, "The Bat Whispers," rounds out the bill.

Inspired by Hayes.

Luise Rainer, who has contributed two of the most memorable screen characters of the last few years—O'Lan in "Good Earth," and Anna Held in "Great Ziegfeld," became interested in a screen career through Helen Hayes. An actress of the legitimate stage, she turned up her pretty nose at the screen offers, feeling that the screen was inferior as a medium of dramatic expression. And then she saw Helen Hayes in "Farewell To Arms" and then and there decided to seek a screen career. Her latest role is the Countess Olga in "The Emperor's Candlesticks" with William Powell, which the Ritz is showing. It's a romance against intrigue and espionage. The second feature is "Flight From Glory."

HEADACHE REMEDY
STARTS WORKING IN SECONDS

THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST
Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and simpler pain a few minutes after taking.
All people who suffer occasionally from headaches ought to know this way to quick relief.
At the first sign of a headache, take two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Sometimes if the pain is unusually severe, one more tablet is necessary later, according to directions.
If headaches keep coming back we advise you to see your own physician. He will look for the cause in order to correct it.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1937.

The Far East has an encouraging sound—the farther the better.

Magicians from all over the country gathered in Philadelphia recently—entirely disregarding the Washington competition.

Tired of being the state chosen in which to commit murder, Michigan is again considering resumption of capital punishment. This is one of the instances in which practicality and idealism clash.

The Children Don't Understand.

MANSFIELD has been hearing much, in recent weeks, about juvenile delinquency—and very little about the ADULT delinquency that is primarily responsible for a considerable percentage of the juvenile variety.

Little can be expected of children whose home surroundings, community environment and social contacts do not provide the information, the training and the example required in establishing rules for good behavior and respectable citizenship.

Observant children in Mansfield may be excused for reaching the conclusion that "laws" are somewhat old-fashioned in modern times and that anything is all right that you can "get away with."

Thoughtful children have a habit of following in the course that they see others pursuing. They have therefore concluded that it is "smart" to be seen around night clubs and liquor dispensaries in general—with little likelihood of having their age questioned—in spite of the fact that it is against the law to sell beer to any person under the age of 18 years, or intoxicating liquor to any person under the age of 21 years.

Children will also have heard before now that in a recent instance in which beer was sold to a 14-year-old girl no penalty was inflicted on the seller.

They will also have noted that gambling of various kinds is going on in an open way in Mansfield—with the knowledge, and apparent sanction of law-enforcement officials—and they cannot understand, therefore, why they should not also dispose of their pennies and nickels in this way, thus making ready to "play the horses" and get into the bigger games as their gambling education improves.

There is a natural sympathy, and inclination toward leniency, on the part of courts dealing with cases of juvenile delinquency brought on by a misunderstanding among children as to which laws are to be enforced and which ignored.

There should be no sympathy or leniency, however, for those adults who are detected in illegal activities which contribute to the delinquency of children.

Hunting Reasons for Market Slump.

PERHAPS as good an explanation as any, for the recent slump in security prices, is that of Henry G. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men. He gives four causes.

First, "the disturbed international situation."

Second, "uncertainty as to future business legislation and taxation policies which brought a lack of confidence among business men and investors."

Third, "the market had run ahead of business recovery." Stock prices were too high—not necessarily higher than current business would justify, but higher than there was good reason to expect for the near future.

Fourth, "consumers' resistance to constantly mounting prices." This rise in prices, Mr. Heimann holds, was due largely to "labor unions who forced industry to pay wages out of line with reason." Other authorities say it was also due largely to unjustified boosts made by many business interests, especially in the building trades.

No Exceptional Accidents.

EVERY automobile accident seems exceptional, perhaps, to the persons involved and to others who read about it. It is a terrible tragedy or a narrow escape, according to its severity, but something no one expected. That attitude may be one reason why accidents continue to increase in number. People do not take their prevention seriously enough.

Statistics on automobile accidents make clear the wholesale slaughter and its needless folly. Then thoughtful citizens are aroused to action. Governor Cross of Connecticut, opening that state's current campaign for auto safety, said:

"The issue before us as citizens is nothing less than a quest on of life or death. In the past ten years nearly 5,000 people have been killed on our highways—think of it! Five times as many people have died on our highways as have been killed in the same period by all the guns of all the armies in the World War. We are prepared to pay any price, to make any sacrifice to stop these slaughters. And I am firmly determined that we shall."

That should be the firm determination of all America today—governors, mayors and police, drivers, pedestrians, safety councils and children!

Limited Air Lanes.

THE old parlor game of "heavy, heavy, what hangs over?" is now being played in air. But in this form it is played in deadly earnest. Nation after nation is undertaking to lay out definite air lanes to which foreign flyers are restricted in crossing its territory.

A new decree in Czechoslovakia, for instance, prescribes seven routes over which planes from Germany must pass, and four for Austrian planes. The alien aircraft may cross only between sunrise and sunset, and must not fly higher than 5000 meters. If a plane crosses or is forced outside of the designated frontier sector, the pilot must land at the nearest customs airport, report his landing and have his plane impounded until it is examined and officially released.

This seems somewhat like prescribing just where, when and at what height wild geese shall fly on their migrations. Lawless human flyers may imitate the birds, and do their migrating mainly at night, keeping as high as possible. But it is obvious that governments almost everywhere will soon feel obliged to make arbitrary rules and do their best to enforce them.

A school for teaching birds how to fly has been opened in England—which sounds very like a federal project.

AND THEN IT HAPPENED!

'Young James' Is Real Aid, Stewart Believes

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—James Roosevelt's selection for the post of liaison man between his father and the heads of the government's numerous independent administrations, boards, commissions and bureaus naturally causes a certain amount of comment as to a "Roosevelt dynasty."

Yet there is less malice in this kind of talk than one might perhaps have expected.

For one thing, "young James" is extremely popular with Washington newspapermen. He is an affable, accommodating chap and he "delivers the goods." When a correspondent asks him for information, if it reasonably is available the inquiring scribe gets it. He is not a bit up-stage and is extremely accessible. In short, he is a great news convenience, and the reporters appreciate him. They have no disposition to encourage disagreeable remarks concerning his new assignment; he has done too many favors for too many of them.

A NECESSARY JOB

Another thing, everyone knows that "young James'" job is one which was much needed.

There are so many federal agencies now that their respective heads' requests for engagements at the White House, to discuss their various problems unavoidably pile up hopelessly. Suppose the president works in 12-hour shifts. And suppose he limits each engagement to 15 minutes. He still has seen only 48 visitors daily. And applicants for hearings number into the hundreds.

To be sure, he has Secretaries McIntyre and Early to act as butlers for him, but there are not enough of them.

So he picks "young James" to supplement them.

CLOSE RELATION AIDS

It raises the cry of nepotism. It is a cry which has been raised against many senators and representatives—as selecting wives, sons, daughters, brothers, sisters and relatives-in-law as secretaries and clerks, or as choosing home town folk for these positions.

I never have sympathized with this outcry.

When, as a newspaperman, I ask for an interview with a senator or representative, I like to meet, in his outer office, a secretary or clerk who knows the point-of-view of his boss.

There is a class of legislative secretaries and clerks in Washington who are purely perfunctory, professional.

My preference is for those who are locally, politically interested.

IN OFFICES OF OTHERS

"Jimmy" Roosevelt is somewhat different.

He is not local, like Senator George W. Norris' secretary, (John P. Robertson, the senator's son-in-law) or Mrs. Garner, the vice president's wife.

Nepotism does not count with me. At least, it does not count if it is not overdone.

A QUEER RUMOR

A ridiculous story is to the effect that President Roosevelt has a "double," who appears for him on important occasions at which the president himself cannot conveniently be in evidence.

It is the silliest imaginable yarn.

Yet I have heard it half a dozen times—that folk have seen a president who wasn't the president at all, but simply so dressed up.

Bunk! I know.

But it goes to show how queer rumors are in these funny times.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Oct. 27, 1917.

Heavy registration indicated that Mansfield would have heaviest vote in its history.

Mrs. Walter Jesson, Clairmont avenue was visiting her daughter Lois, in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Anna Kuebling, 63, was knocked by train at Orange street grade crossing.

Reformatory population reached new high mark with 1,430 inmates.

Miss Gertrude Dickey went to Granville to visit her sister Louise.

Dr. R. C. Wise left for Washington and Philadelphia to attend medical meetings.

Licenses were renewed for 43 saloons in Mansfield; nine in Shelby and two in Plymouth.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Oct. 27, 1932.

The birthday anniversary of Mrs. A. L. Price was celebrated at the meeting of the Woman's Guild, Grace Episcopal church.

J. E. Morrow moved to 635 Park avenue west from Sandusky.

Mrs. H. D. Longsdorf, 123 South Diamond street, was released from General hospital.

David Meering, 12, suffered facial cuts and scalp injuries when he collided with a parked automobile while riding his bicycle near his home on Altamont avenue.

James W. Reed, Civil war veteran died at the home of his sister Mrs. Nora Mowry, 182 South Diamond street.

Governor George White and United States Senator Joe T. Robinson spoke at the Mansfield Senior high school auditorium.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON—

The Flame Goes On!

GIVE me the smell of garlic, adobe mud, pepper trees and December violets, and I'm back again in the wild west 80's, sitting with the other kids in front of Happy Jack's shack, listening while old Happy tells us about his long red scar.

Lots of folk had scars those days—you didn't settle a frontier without getting nicked here and there. But, even in a scarish time, Happy Jack's was different. A rough, red line, stretching from ear to ear, skirting the hair line. . .

Funny place for a scar?

"No," surmised Happy, taking another chaw; "just the usual place—when you're gitting scalped."

Scalped! We went goose-pimpley with delight at the very thought. Gone was the gas-lighted street . . . gone our mothers' picket-fenced gardens. Once again we were wriggling through the buffalo grass . . silent as skulking wolves . . searching with Happy Jack for the mark of an Indian moccasin, the ash of an Indian fire.

"The birth of a nation" . . . how near, how clear it was to us then. No sky scrapers, yet, to temper the wilderness wind . . . no automobiles or aeroplanes to shrink the wilderness vastness . . . no luxurious machine age to pad hardship and agony. Men burning slowly at the stake . . . dying, alone, under the pitiless desert sun. Women saying goodbye to everything a young bride holds dear . . bearing their babies while the lumbering caravan waited . . . burying those same babies further along the trail, with the great wheels rolling, rolling, across the little mound, lest some fiendish brown hand come—

The price of empire . . . It wasn't a phrase to us, then. It was a living reality. There lay the mark of it, in scarred flesh . . . there burned the flame of it, in glowing eyes. Old Happy Jack's eyes blazing because he'd been "in on the making."

Imperialism meant something . . .

Last night, abruptly, it all came back to me.

I was standing in a place of beautiful furs. Mink, ermine, sable . . a luxury center of the new America. Before me — perfectly groomed, suavely sophisticated—a young merchant, speaking of this new America. Wondering . . . worried. He's just paid an old age pension tax—other taxes—every day a new tax. Where were we going? How was it all to end? People couldn't stand it, taking it out of their hide this.

The cost of empire . . . the fragrance of ermine and mink. And suddenly it came back to me . . the harsh stench of coyote and bear . . the terror by day and horror by night . . . the moans of tortured men and heart-broken women.

They, too, had been taxed. They too must have wondered if they could "stand it, taking it out of them like this."

Yet they had stood it—and gloriously! Clear across the years I saw the flame in Happy Jack's eyes beneath the savage scar . . . his burning pride because he had "been in on the making." Was that the last of the flame? Had it gone out forever . . . smothered in luxury and greed?

Even as I wondered I was answered. Across my thoughts, the young merchant's voice broke, boyish and proud—"But these worries . . . they're really just all talk. Look what we have . . . it's worth whatever it costs. We can't . . . we won't . . . sell America short!"

"WE CAN'T . . . WE WON'T . . . SELL AMERICA SHORT!"

They'd paid the price, willingly, in 1850—in 1890.

They're paying the price, willingly, today.

They can't, they won't sell America short—

THE FLAME STILL GOES ON!

Sees Education as Remedy.

Editor News-Journal:

Accept my hearty congratulations on your editorial in Monday's News-Journal relative to the opportunity offered adults of my race through the facilities of Bowman street school.

We have two very capable and earnest instructors, and I am of the honest opinion that many men and women will hail your timely article as an incentive to freely grasp this wonderful opportunity, which will ultimately result in better fitting them to meet the many problems of life with which they are daily confronted.

I believe that education is the only remedy which can be applied, in many instances, for the correction of social ills and petty misunderstandings.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

La Guardia Victory Seen Overwhelming.

REPUBLICANS will win several mayoralty elections on Nov. 2. And yet they won't.

The Republicans elected will not be "real" Republicans. They will be New Deal Republicans.

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia is expected to win overwhelmingly in New York over Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Democrat. But La Guardia, although supported by the Republicans, as well as by the American Labor party, the Socialists, the Communists, the Fusionists and independents generally, is more New Deal than the New Deal Democrat.

In Cleveland, Mayor Harold H. Burton, Republican, will be re-elected over John T. McWilliams, Democrat. But the issue has been clean government, New Deal rule and — who stands the better chance of getting the more money from the Roosevelt administration. Burton has done well at getting money. When he ran for the mayoralty the first time, a New Dealer who is a Clevelander, came all the way fro- Washington to make speeches for him—Joseph T. Keenan, assistant attorney general. And each time President Roosevelt passes through Cleveland, Mayor Burton has been in the front row.

In the Detroit runoff election, Richard W. Reading, city clerk, conservative and Republican, may win out over Patrick H. O'Brien, Democrat, endorsed by the CIO. O'Brien, former attorney general of Michigan, however, is putting up a strong fight. If Reading should win, that would be a defeat for the New Dealers.

In Pittsburgh, Mayor Cornelius D. Scully, Democrat, is said to be the likely winner over Robert N. Waddell, Republican. Mayor Scully benefits by the Democratic tidal wave still engulfing Pennsylvania. Once the strongest Republican state, Pennsylvania has become almost the strongest New Deal state.

The CIO has indorsed Scully, which means a great deal. John L. Lewis is the strongest single political factor in Pennsylvania at present.

The labor vote will decide elections in Akron and Canton, O., where CIO rubber worker and steel worker support is said to be solidly behind the Democrat'c candidates. Mayor Lee D. Schroy, Republican, seeks re-election in Akron. He is opposed by Judge Garnet L. Patterson, fiery young New Dealer who is the Democratic and CIO candidate. The Canton race is similar, with Mayor James Seccombe, Republican, running against Darrell D. Smith, also a youthful New Deal Democrat with strong labor backing. Local observers predict that both races will be close.

FUSION SWEEP

The Fusionists may make a clean sweep in New York, virtually wiping out Tammany. The Republicans may count that a victory, but it looks more as if a "beyond Roosevelt" New Deal group were absorbing the Republicans in New York City.

Certain it is, no Republican running for president could carry New York City. But a Republican running as a "beyond-Roosevelt" New Dealer might. Is La Guardia that man? Or will Senator Robert M. La Follette be that person?

Or will Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself, be the person—if the conservatives gang up in an attempt to destroy the New Dealers?

STILL ROOSEVELT

Observers who have gone over the ground in these off-year elections seem united on one thing—

The nation still is strongly pro-Roosevelt.

Indeed, it would not surprise some of these observers if National Democratic Chairman Farley were correct—F. D. R. could carry all 48 states at the moment.

The Hoover-Landon-Lowden efforts to get the Republicans into an offensive have been pitiful—because they, themselves, have nothing to offer except hash.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Is Real Liberalism Emerging?

By HARLEY L. LUTZ
Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University.

At last we know what labor is thinking. It would be more accurate, perhaps, to say that we know now what Mr. John L. Lewis thinks that labor is thinking. At any rate, we know what Mr. Lewis himself is thinking, for he has recently set forth his thoughts in the October, 1937, issue of The Public Opinion Quarterly. Since this article presumably embodies the creed of the leaders of one branch of the American labor movement, it is entitled to our careful consideration.

No fair-minded person can offer serious objection to the basic aspirations of the labor movement. Fair wages for the work done, realization of a decent standard of living and the preservation of an inner self-respect as one works—these are essential conditions for the maintenance of a society of free men. Mr. Lewis does not express the objectives of the labor movements in these words, but we may assume that he would accept such a statement, although his article makes clear that he proposes to go much farther.

Nor can any fair-minded person doubt that effective collective bargaining is necessary to enable laborers to deal with employers on terms of equality. It has long been recognized that the individual worker is hopelessly handicapped in attempting to deal personally with an employer. Neither can he rely on the employer's fairness and good will to prevent undue advantage being taken of his relative weakness in the labor bargain. Hence, organization is essential to collective bargaining.

The differences that arise are likely to be centered about the question of methods and procedures rather than the question of basic aims. In other words, the difficulty is not so much a matter of what labor may reasonably want and seek to get, as it is a matter of how labor, or the leaders of labor propose to go about getting it.

At this point, Mr. Lewis' article is significant, both for its statement of a program and for its omissions. The keynote of his program is " . . . legislation or other provision . . . for economic planning, and for price, production and profit controls." It is to be noted that he does not include wage control. When this legislative goal is reached, the governmental control of every other economic share will naturally give labor all that is left. Mr. Lewis apparently does not realize that his plan of controlling what every one else does and gets inevitably means, indirectly if not directly, a similar control over labor. In his present enthusiasm for such a scheme, he expects the labor share to be much more than at present. On the contrary it is likely to be less.

The ultimate solution of the labor problem that Mr. Lewis proposes is political action. The labor movement should possess effective strength, he says, "not only in the economic field but also in the political field, to be used without reserve. If necessary, in the great battle for humanity and genuine democracy."

Mr. Lewis' somewhat naive economics will be examined in a later article. Here it may be observed that the plan for labor to use political action "without reserve" strongly suggests another proposal made nearly a hundred years ago in the supposed interest of humanity. This proposal was the "dictatorship of the proletariat" and the document in which it was made was The Communist Manifesto.

Timely Editorial

Discord Not the Way.

Once a new deal adviser and a leading member of the original "brain trust," Prof. Raymond Moley has become increasingly critical of administration policies. In this respect, of course, he is but one of a long list of persons previously a part of the new deal.

In his latest statement, made in a New York address, Mr. Moley charges that the administration is creating discord among the American people at a time when peace and an absence of class feeling are particularly needed. He speaks of "the growing weariness of the country with the there-are-villains-lurking-in-the-bushes-ready-to-tear-you-to-pieces appeal" which Mr. Roosevelt continuously is making.

Mr. Moley thinks that somebody is going to capture public interest "by insisting that life isn't a bitter war, but a process of continuous adjustment." He would prefer that it should be Mr. Roosevelt, but sees little chance of that in view of recent presidential utterances which have brought out still more of the villains and produced still more of the alarmist appeals.

But this essentially is no new development. It has become characteristic of administration pronouncements. It could not reasonably be hoped that the tactics would change. It must be left to the calmer judgment of the American people to make the most of an unfortunate policy calculated to arouse animosities instead of a co-operative forward effort in the interest of all.—Kansas City Times.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE LAW OF LIBERTY: So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty.—James 2:12.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THERE are few sections of the town over which falls such an olive drab aura of evening content as in Madison Square. Of all the squares in town, Madison belongs to those gentle lodgers who come out to it for a sort of spiritual repose as shadows deepen.

The bench sitters seem indulging meditation, fairly looking through passers by. Mostly they are wives and husbands in middle years, or elderly. The Big Ben looks down upon them benignly from the gaunt Metropolitan Tower, pealing the hours, and around 10 p. m. the square is almost deserted.

Too, there are those queer characters who seem to make this plaza their rendezvous—harmless duffers whose coat fronts are shiny with stray pins, the long-haired and often shoeless. Old ladies who mumble and poke hopefully through refuse cans.

Madison Square is the last stand of the roaming shoeshiner who takes pride in duding up his blacking box with brack tacks, gaudy colors of paint and mirrors. An evening shine is something of a vesperal rite with hundreds who have lived near the square for years.

Hary Pilcer, the East Side boy who married Gaby Deslys and became an established Parisian night club entertainer, is reputedly more popular than ever during his 25 years in the French capital. Brushing 50, he has acquired something of the art of youthfulness as expressed by the ageless Mistinguett, and he dances nightly at a new club he sponsored for the Yankee trade. Pilcer was a busker, dancing along the sidewalks for pitched pennies when he went over to France one summer just for a lark. He has been back a few times, but only for a short stay. He speaks French fluently and his English has an accent. Even his gestures have become Gallic.

George White graduated from busking or sidewalk dancing when Broadway knew him as "Swifty, the Messenger boy," to top theatrical billing. So did Jack Donahue, whose rhythm was most enchanting of all. Ditto Bill Robinson and James Barton. Harlan Dixon — where is he?—did sidewalk salterellos before teaming up to become one of that notable pair, Doyle and Dixon. In the same fashion the pavement jiggers of today around the town are the Ray Bolgers and Fred Astaires of tomorow.

There is always a reason for a restaurant's success. In one of the better ones the other evening a gentleman and his wife casually mentioned to several other guests that this was the twenty-third anniversary of their marriage. There were congratulations. A shrewd captain had overheard the remark and at the conclusion of the meal two waiters—bore in blazing triumph a 23-candled cake upon which was frescoed with the years "1914-1937" and appropriate greeting.

For oblivion: That wealthy type of youth—brought up in affluence due to a capitalistic era— who affects the role of a parlor pink. He is always the poser who never did a day's work in his frivolous life and would be shunned by communists themselves as a bore. Of mediocre talents, this is his beau geste, his only way of attracting attention. Having nothing, he thinks it might be grand to share everything. I am told a man on West 73d street tutors many of the parlor pinks—for $10 a lesson—giving them some pat phrases to drop as thought casually thought up. Also a list of leading questions sure to start an argument in any gathering.

To my notion, nothing touches off retrospection like an organ. In the churches, of course, it gives us pause, paving way for meditation. In the pioneer days of the silent films, the organ, treading close upon the improvisations of the tinny pianist, followed all reels. I have wondered if Mary Pickford, with her vast memories of those picture days, ever steals into one of those forlorn and out-of-the-way silent movies where the organ still peals, and sitting there, recalls all those she knew in the salad days.

How certain old tunes also chivvy up scenes of the past. I never hear "When the Harvest Days Are Over", without thoughts of the barefoot days, the dusty road, the cow going home from pasture, the crickets' song...the locust chorus ...the steamboat whistle around the bend...beating round steak in the back yards.

SERIOUS BUSINESS

It's good business to keep both hands on the steering wheel when you drive. Lovelorn Lake, yielding to the romantic setting of a June moon, was driving with one arm and hugging his best girl with the other. No, it didn't work out so well—for what his sweetie is telling him is plenty. To drive safely through the maze of auto traffic it is essential that the driver keep his hands on the steering wheel, his eyes on the road ahead, and his mind on the job of arriving safely.

DRIVERS' STRIKE TIES UP ALL CITY COAL DELIVERIES

ways entering the city to prevent any outside supply from being brought in.

While no coal was being delivered by the companies this morning, city officials called a hurried conference with union officers, after the city building had been swamped with complaints.

Mayor Earl A. McFarland said that they had arranged a meeting for 7 p. m. today between the coal dealers and the drivers' local at the Southern hotel to open the negotiations.

Chief, Sheriff Confer.

At noon today Police Chief Meade K. Bates and Sheriff E. P. Long were still in conference with union officials in the chief's office.

Bates said that they were attempting to arrange for an earlier meeting between the companies and the union.

"Our primary interest is to get the two together and hope for an early settlement," Bates said.

McFarland explained that the situation had now reached strike proportions and that the police department and sheriff's office were interested from the standpoint of law and order.

"It is up to those departments in a situation of this kind to protect life, limb and property" the mayor said.

Huntsman stated that the union had agreed with city officials that coal deliveries be made where illness prevailed and to the public schools and the hospital.

"We are working out a plan with Bates and the coal dealers where delivery will be allowed to these places," Huntsman said.

The blockade was formed at the offices of four companies yesterday following a mass meeting held by the union Monday night.

Union officials said the action was taken because the companies refused to negotiate with the union for a working agreement that calls for increased wages and better working conditions.

While Huntsman declined to reveal what increase in wages was being asked, he did say that the drivers were receiving "anywhere from 60 cents to $1 a ton for hauling."

One of the companies pointed out that the demand received from the local called for a 15-cent increase per ton, shorter hours and an increased rate per ton for all overtime.

this business in which we are all a part."

"Cramer then said that if the opposition has a plan they intend to use, I have not seen or heard of one publicly."

"I assume they have one, and as a voter I am entitled to know what it is."

"We have no apologies to make for our ticket this year," Cramer said he urged his audience to give a Republican mayor a Republican council to work with.

Bierly speaking briefly, touched on each point of his seven-point program which he said, "was submitted as a very definite approach to the situation."

"My political footwork may not be so clever," Bierly said, "but I would rather face the issues without fear or favor, rather than pass the buck."

"I'd rather my opponents not talk about a clean campaign and then open the door and let in the butcher. I am not here to tear down, but to build up. We are all stockholders in a corporation and expect the city to be administered in the right way."

Taking up his plan of calling in a traffic expert to study Mansfield traffic ills, Bierly said, "My opponents have chosen to make reference to that. I don't feel that any apology is necessary for seeking technical advice. The fault lies in not doing anything after the expert advice has been received."

Donald Ogden, president of the John Sherman club introduced other candidates on the ticket.

Announcement was made by Carlton S. Fernyak, chairman of the Richland county Republican executive committee that the county-wide rally originally scheduled for Thursday night in the Senior high school, would be a dinner meeting instead at the First M. E. church.

Following the dinner Thursday, Dudley White, Norwalk, congressman from the 13th district will speak. The rally, in addition to its political aspects, also will commemorate the birthday anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt and will mark Navy day, Fernyak said.

HAHN DEFENSE GIVEN SETBACK

Fails to Shake Testimony of Doctor Blaming Poison For Crippling Invalid.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Defense cross examination in the murder trial of Anna Marie Hahn failed today to shake testimony of Dr. George Altemeier that George Heis, 62, "probably" was crippled by a poison which the state claims was administered by Mrs. Hahn.

Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt contends Heis is "Mrs. Hahn's only living witness of a plot to slay for gain." The woman is on trial charged with the poison slaying of 78-year-old Jacob Wagner.

Chief Defense Counsel Joseph H. Hoodin suggested alcoholism, sleeping powders, or a solution used in washing beer bottles as possible causes of Heis' illness.

Hoodin's deference to the possibility that a bottle-washing solution might have caused Heis' paralyzed condition met the reply:

"That's a soda alkali and might even be helpful in some cases."

Heis testified yesterday from a wheeled chair placed directly in front of the jury of eleven women and one man.

Once extending paralyzed hands toward the jury, Heis said he had gestured similarly to Mrs. Hahn with the accusation: "You did this to me."

Before the blond German immigrant brought him food at his home in September, 1936, he said, he was a "healthy man."

COLD, BUT IT'LL BE WARM AGAIN

North Wind Sends Mercury Down; Goes Up Again Tomorrow.

Despite a slow decline in temperature after the mercury reached a high of 46 at 10 a. m. today, there is no cold wave in sight and Thursday will be fair and warmer, the forecast predicted. Slightly colder weather was forecast for tonight.

Heavy clouds brought semi-darkness and a trace of rain to the city this morning, but a brisk north wind had started to rout the cloudiness by noon, causing the mercury to drop to 45 degrees.

Yesterday's top reading of 62 degrees boosted the average for the past 24 hours to 52, nearly six degrees above normal.

PILOT LANDS CRIPPLED PLANE SAFELY AS THOUSANDS WATCH

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(UP)—For two hours, a crowd gathered at Stinson airfield to watch Henry C. Thompson's plane crash.

Ambulances and a wrecker were kept in waiting.

Overhead, the plane droned on, making slow circles while the pilot wrenched and tugged at the landing gear crank. One wheel was down and the other struck in the fuselage. A crash was inevitable.

In the plane with Thompson were W H. Thralls, an oil geologist, and Fred McConnell, vice president of the Tulsa company. They were flying from Midland, Tex., to Kerrville.

When he began cranking down the wheels to land at Kerrville, only half the gear descended Then the mechanism struck. Thompson could not raise the one wheel or lower the other. He flew on to San Antonio where landing and hospital facilities were better.

"Stand by with ambulances and a wrecker and prepare for a possible crackup," he called to the San Antonio airport by radio.

Arriving over the airport here, he began to circle. The crowd grew until 1,000 cars blocked the highway. As darkness approached, Thompson called: "Clear the field, I'm coming down."

The plane glided down, settled on the one wheel. Thompson cut the throttle and jerked back on the stick. The plane spun, tottered, the propellor bit into the ground with a splintering crash. Then it was over. All three men crawled out, unhurt.

"Pretty lucky," Thompson said. "Just the landing gear and prop' smashed."

lions of unorganized workers in such industries."

Reasons advanced by Murray for rejecting the federation plan were.

1. That, if the original 12 CIO unions chartered by the federation were to return to the A. F. of L. they would "desert and betray" 23 new CIO unions.

2. Murray said the federation proposal "suggests abject surrender" and would force CIO unions to relinquish their membership in any kind of labor union."

3. Murray termed the federation plan merely a reaffirmation of its former policy and "as we understand it, a rejection of the principle of industrial organization in mass production and other basic industries."

Murray issued a statement accompanying the reasons for rejection. This recited the history of the CIO and said that it was formed "to accomplish a single task—to organize the millions of unorganized workers in this country."

It said the CIO desired a unified labor movement because conflict between factions "can only result in the advantage of the reactionary employers."

At the Sears store, she tendered a check for $8 for a $1.50 purchase and was given $6.50 in change, and at Penney's she gave a check for $5 for a $1.38 purchase and was given change. Police said both checks were drawn on the Richland Trust company and bore the name of a Mansfield physician.

ASSEMBLY CALL DELAYED AGAIN

Davey Insists State and Local Governments Equally Share Costs of Ohio Relief.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's stormy poor relief problem encountered fresh uncertainty today with further delay in calling of a special legislative session and prospects for resumption of a deadlock which left relief up to local governments last spring.

The session, planned by Gov. Martin L. Davey for early October, then early November, and now possibly for December, was held off pending an agreed program completed recently by a legislative special joint committee.

Matching of state funds by local subdivisions popped up again as a main point for decision when Governor Davey demanded matching — labeled in statements by some city and county officials as impossible because of lack of funds. The executive said he favored 50-50 division of relief cost.

In addition, he threatened in his first comment on the program to veto any appropriation for relief from the general revenue fund and said he would not accept any plan calling for contributions from new state taxes.

Whether he would go along with the special legisaltive committee's estimate that between $14,000,000 and $16,000,000 would be needed was in doubt, Governor Davey reporting he was having tax experts study the committee's plan for the state to carry $12,000,000 of the cost.

CHAPTER XXIX

"But afterward," Gloria persisted "Afterward, when it was all complicated, when I couldn't straighten it out at all. That'd be black despair then."

"It's black despair now," Karl finally said quietly. "I don't understand you. We're not talking the same language any more. We need each other; we've found each other; it's going to be only half life for me without you, thinking of you—remembering—"

"I know," she said. "But this way it's what I can face. I can't face the other."

"You're doing it for the child, of course?"

"Perhaps it was that in the beginning. But now it's something else, too. It's for Peter and you as well as Jimmy; it's for me most of all. It's for me—not now, but in the years ahead."

Karl spoke in a low tone devoid of emotion of reproach: "But it's not naiural to put a child before the man who loves you and whom you love, Gloria. Think of me."

"I'm doing what I have to do, Karl. Not what I want to do."

"You see it that way?" A long silence followed his words. Then he said simply, "Goodbye."

* * *

He put his arms about her for a moment and kissed her quickly. Gloria could not speak. After the door had closed behind him she stood wavering in the center of the room, looking vaguely about, her hands hanging loose at her sides.

"Now," she said in an audible whisper, "you've done it! He's gone. Goodbye to Dr. Karl Pitcher—forever and forever..."

The rest of the day went by like a strange dream. Automatically Gloria went about the usual duties of the afternoon; descended to talk to the old people; gave Jimmy his supper and accompanied his hopping return, step by step, upstairs to bed. They went into Peter's room so that Jimmy could say a final good night to Dad; Peter dragged the fresh, soft little face hungrily against his own white face. Gloria said good night too; she was tired and was going straight to bed.

Rain was still tapping at the windows and gurgling and dripping from the roof. Gloria got into bed, lighted her reading lamp, and opened her book . . .

The telephone stood only a few feet from her bed. She looked at it, and thought of Karl's voice at the other end of the line. Karl was at the hotel with his mother—Douglas four eight hundred. Douglas four eight hundred. Karl would answer the telephone if she called; he was eager, as heartsick as she tonight. He was loitering there in the hotel with his mother, listening, listening, waiting for the bell to ring.

Ten o'clock; it would be late to call him now. Quarter to eleven, ah, now it really was too late. She would call him the very first thing in the morning.

She did not telephone Karl in the morning, nor in the afternoon, nor in the endless evening that followed, though the telephone bell never sounded that her senses did not leap with wild desire, and longing burned her soul like a leaf in a flame. Gloria moved through her day automatically, conscious only of the calendar that took him away from her, hour by hour. Now he was in Santa Barbara; he could telephone from there. Now he might be going east, unless he had decided to come to see her once more—to run up the steps this afternoon in the warm, eternal drizzle of rain . . .

He sent no word; he did not come. The rains stopped and the early western spring began to push in greenness and sweetness from the wet earth, and still there was no sign from Karl. The days for Gloria went on in a great blankness and stillness. Quite late in an evening more than a week later she went into Peter's room. "You and Jimmy had a wild time tonight."

"Too much for him, d'you think?"

"For that siwash? No! But I was thinking it might be too much for you."

"I feel better than I have felt for years. I'm perfectly all right. You're not," Peter said, "to have me on your mind."

"Did they tell you Karl isn't coming back?"

"Yes. Where's he off to?"

"Santa Barbara first. Then to the East to the new job."

"And what are your plans, Glory? Are you going to join him?"

She looked at him strangely, thoughtfully. "It depends somewhat on you," she said, after a pause.

They talked very simply; there was no eloquence, no passion on either side. Now and then Peter's eyes filled, and he wiped them quite openly.

"You mean — you can't mean, Glory, that you and I and the Scout are going to begin all over again?" Peter asked. "I've wanted so to start over—not to fail you where I did fail you—"

"But it won't be starting over," she said slowly, thinking aloud, as he paused. "It'll be going on. And you musn't say that you failed me; you've never failed me, Peter. The thing is that here we are, a man and woman who—who started something and who have to see it through. Just what we'll do doesn't matter. We might build onto 'Bide-a-We;' you always wanted to put on a library and a spare room."

Peter listened, saying little. But when she got up to go he caught at her hand. "Glory, I can't say anything about that, about what I think of you. I've always loved you, since we met—downstairs here, here in the old Lockwood. But it was nothing to the way I feel about you now! You did love me once; maybe some day you'll love me again. Anyway—anyway, what you've just been saying, what we're planning to do has made me—it's made me believe in God, Gloria, in things happening that—that aren't like the way they happen in this world!"

Gloria looked down at him seriously, her hand in his hand. "I think maybe I believe in Him, too," she said. "It's all mixed up in my losing faith in myself. I had to have faith in someone. I don't know. But maybe it's God."

"I wish you were as happy as I am!" Peter said.

"I'm happy. It's going to make me very happy to write to Mother, one of these days. It's going to be wonderful to tell Jimmy that Mother and Dad are going to be here always. And I'll like talking to Tony and Kitty," Gloria said. "There's a feeling of peace—of being right about it all, Peter. Do you feel it, too?"

"I think," he said, "that you're never going to be sorry."

"You oughtn't to say that sort of thing to me," she said, blinking wet lashes. "It seems to me that it's all of you—Kitty and Tony and Mother and you and Jimmy who are being wonderful to me. Being so—so terribly patient with me! I don't know why anybody thinks I'm worthwhile!"

Tears came into her eyes. She freed her hand from Peter's and found a handkerchief and wiped them away. And immediately, without speaking again, she left the room.

One August day, when the sun was setting beyond the waters of the Golden Gate, its light lying in long strips across the fragrance and beauty of Kitty's hillside garden, from a group that was settled idly and happily in the old basket chairs, a woman's voice sounded regretfully: "I wish we had another week of this! I feel ironed out—I feel rested! It's simply made us all over, Tony, Mary, Peter, Jimmy, every one of us."

"How has it made us over, Mummy?" a square, sun-browned boy of nine asked interestedly. "Are we better?"

"One hundred per cent better," a man's voice said on a lazy laugh. Peter's voice. He was stretched in a chair with a small, sturdy girl of two seated squarely upon him—a little girl with bright-gold hair and dark-gold eyes.

"We're going downtown for things for Mother," said a girl who was stretched on the lawn capably. Quite a big girl, this one; fourteen perhaps, with tawny hair bobbed into a bright mop, a tawny skin, a sleeveless blue sweater and brief, pleated linen skirt. "We'll take Mary," she said.

"Leave Mary and take Jimmy, Jane. Only don't leave him for one instant alone anywhere," said the first speaker. "It must be nearly six; it's almost time for Mary to say good night."

"We're just getting figs and cream and maybe a watermelon and more butter," said the double of the girl who had spoken. "We'll hold on to him, Aunt Gloria."

"Seriously, Kitty," Gloria said, when the twins and Jimmy had departed and Mary, drowsy, had collapsed against her father's arm, "this visit has been one of the good times of life. It's been twenty-two days of perfection."

"It's been heaven for us," Kitty said simply. "Tony and I talk about you every day, don't we, Tony?"

"We've told each other, in these years, that some day you'd come back and we'd all sit out here and watch the moon rise," Tony said, as Kitty paused. "We've had Mary's picture and snapshots of Jimmy to keep us in touch. And now it's over, and you go back tomorrow."
